Dynamic Pulsations Propel SHS Onward

Perpetual motion propelled Speedway students through the 1967-68 school year. School spirit soared as the freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors competed for the Spirit Jug. Settling down to more serious business, students studied many extra hours as they viewed semester exams with fearful hearts. Athletic teams, musical organizations, speech and theatre groups offered Speedway students a variety of activities throughout the year. An undefeated varsity football team set off an explosion of spirit lasting the entire year. The February Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France, took second place in the hearts of sports-minded Speedway students as they anticipated the Zionsville Basketball Sectional. Determined individuals met the mounting pressures of stiffened college entrance requirements by studying with extra diligence. For others hours of study led to careers in business and industry. Ambitious students were the symbols of SPEEDWAY ON THE MOVE.

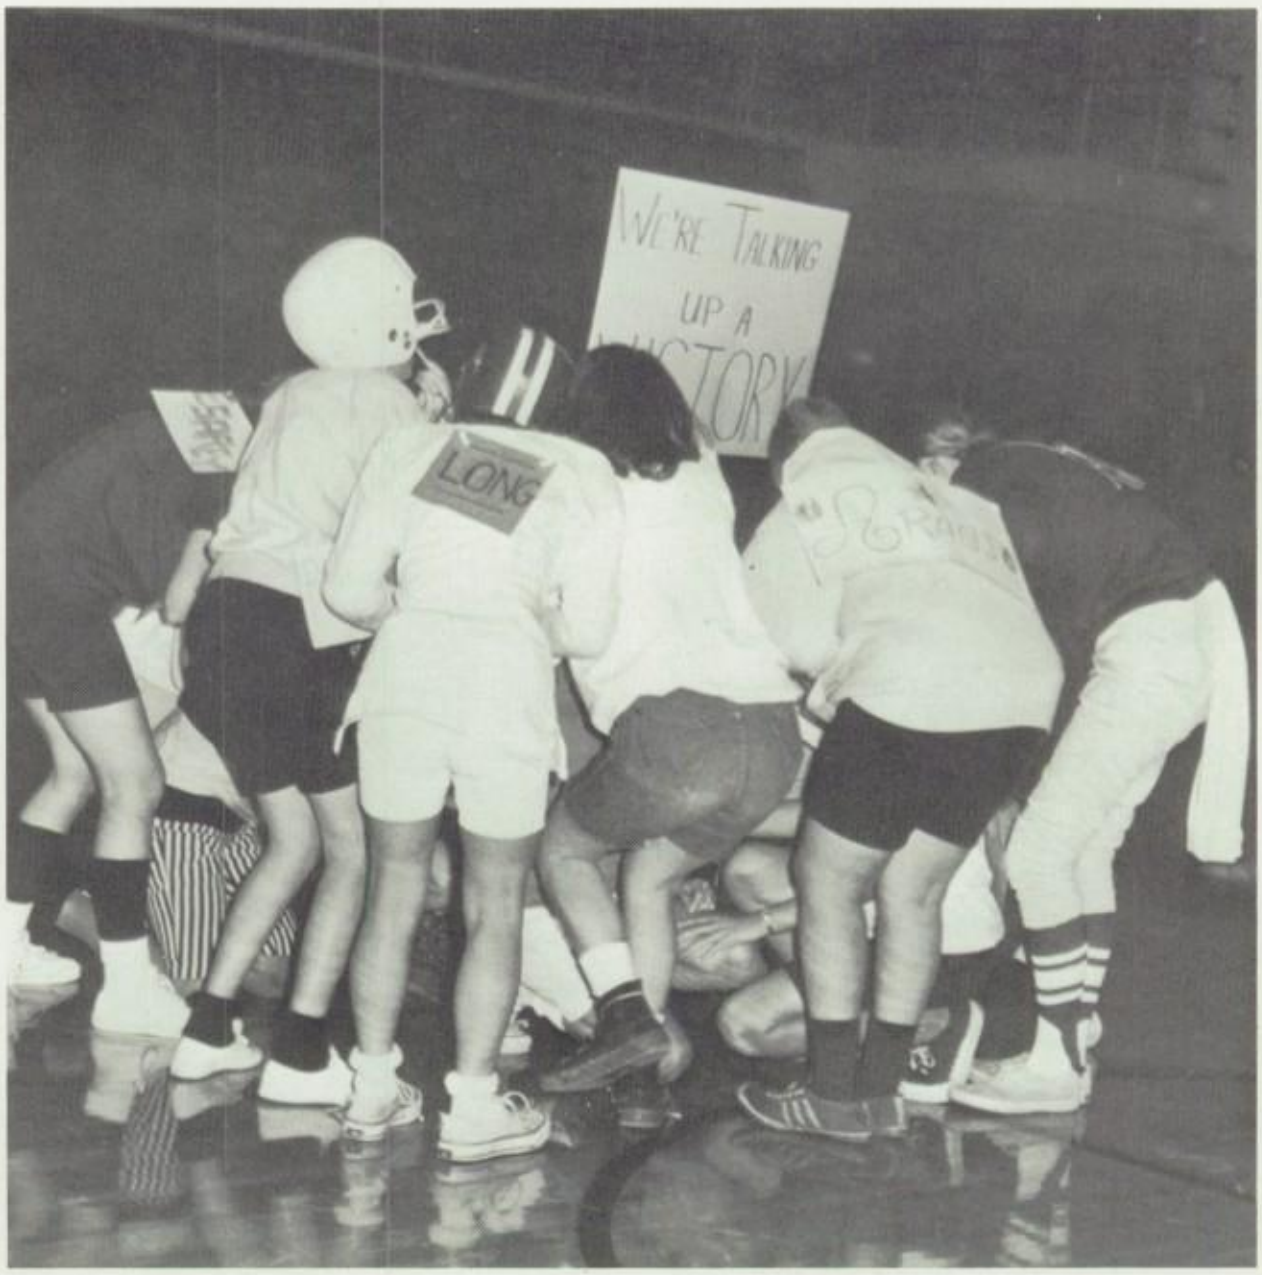
Continuous Expansion of Spirit Denotes

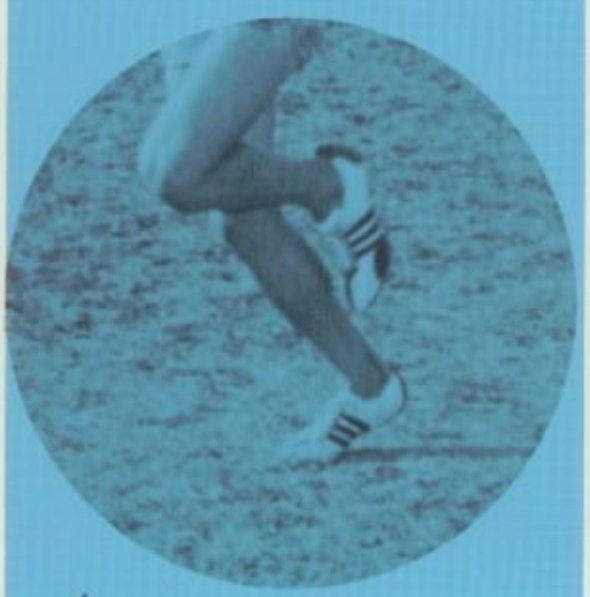
Sparkplugs—supercharged with spirit, the kind of spirit that won friends, awards, and honors. Spirit electrified pep sessions as the effervescent classes battled for the spirit jug. Students, clubs, and faculty exploded in spirit during the basketball season. Spirit pulsated through the halls with homecoming mums, signs, and buttons. Peppier pep sessions, and explosions of spirit defined the moving year of 1967-68.

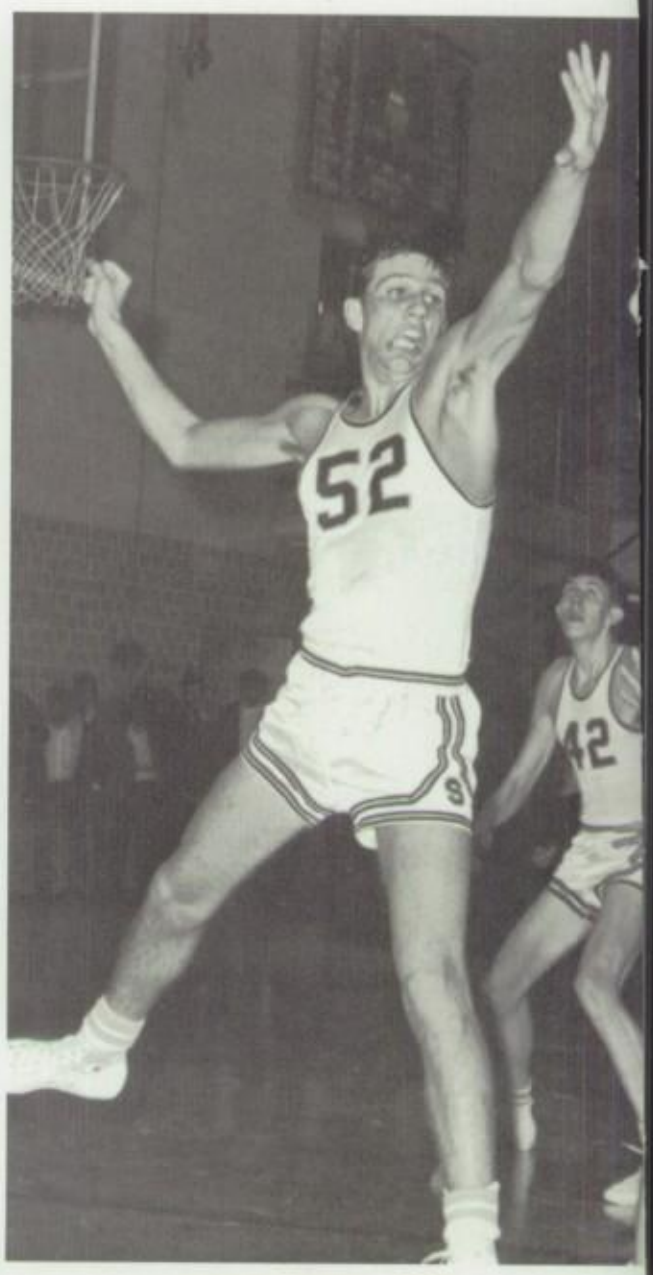
Speedway Life



Perseverance Exemplifies a New Speedway

Strained voices, tired mucles, and tightly clenched pencils marked the determination of SHS students. Determined to be best, Sparkplugs cheered louder, ran faster, and studied harder. Determined to blaze a trail, freshmen had a winning basketball season. One year gone, sophomores won the GAA Tourney. Experienced juniors took college SAT's, while determined seniors captured the Boys' Class Tourney. Each class was determined to lead SHS to success.





on the Move

A Triumphant Atmosphere Saturates the Success—Speedway claims it! Freshmen discover it! Meeting the strain of getting from class to class amid the Labyrinth of halls and fellow students was the reward. Sophomores flash it! Success was the shine of newly-ordered class jewelry. Juniors plan it! The pressure of addressing invitations propelled juniors toward the prom. Seniors anticipate it! The epitome of success was reached as seniors stepped forward to accept their hard-earned diplomas.

Corridors of Speedway

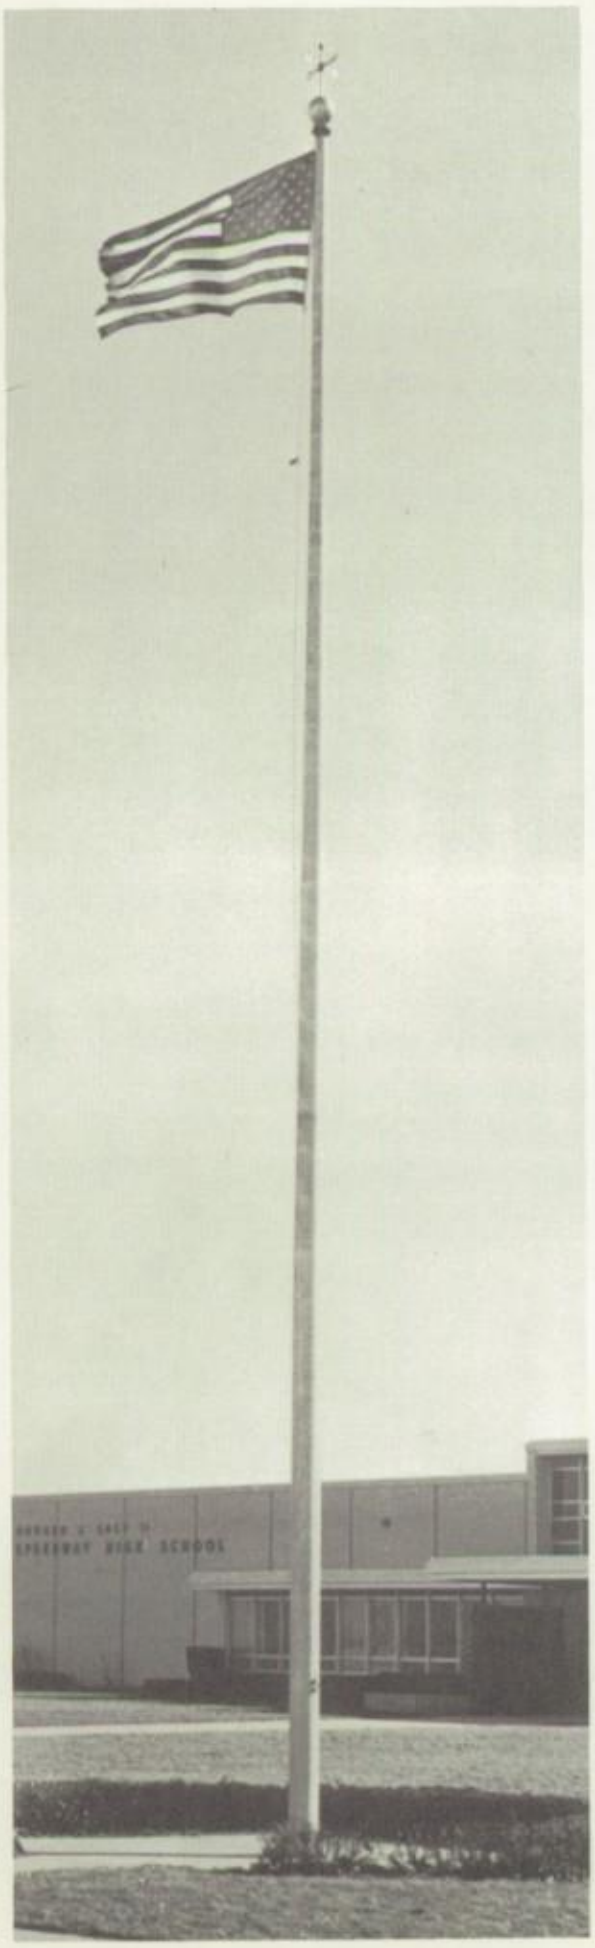
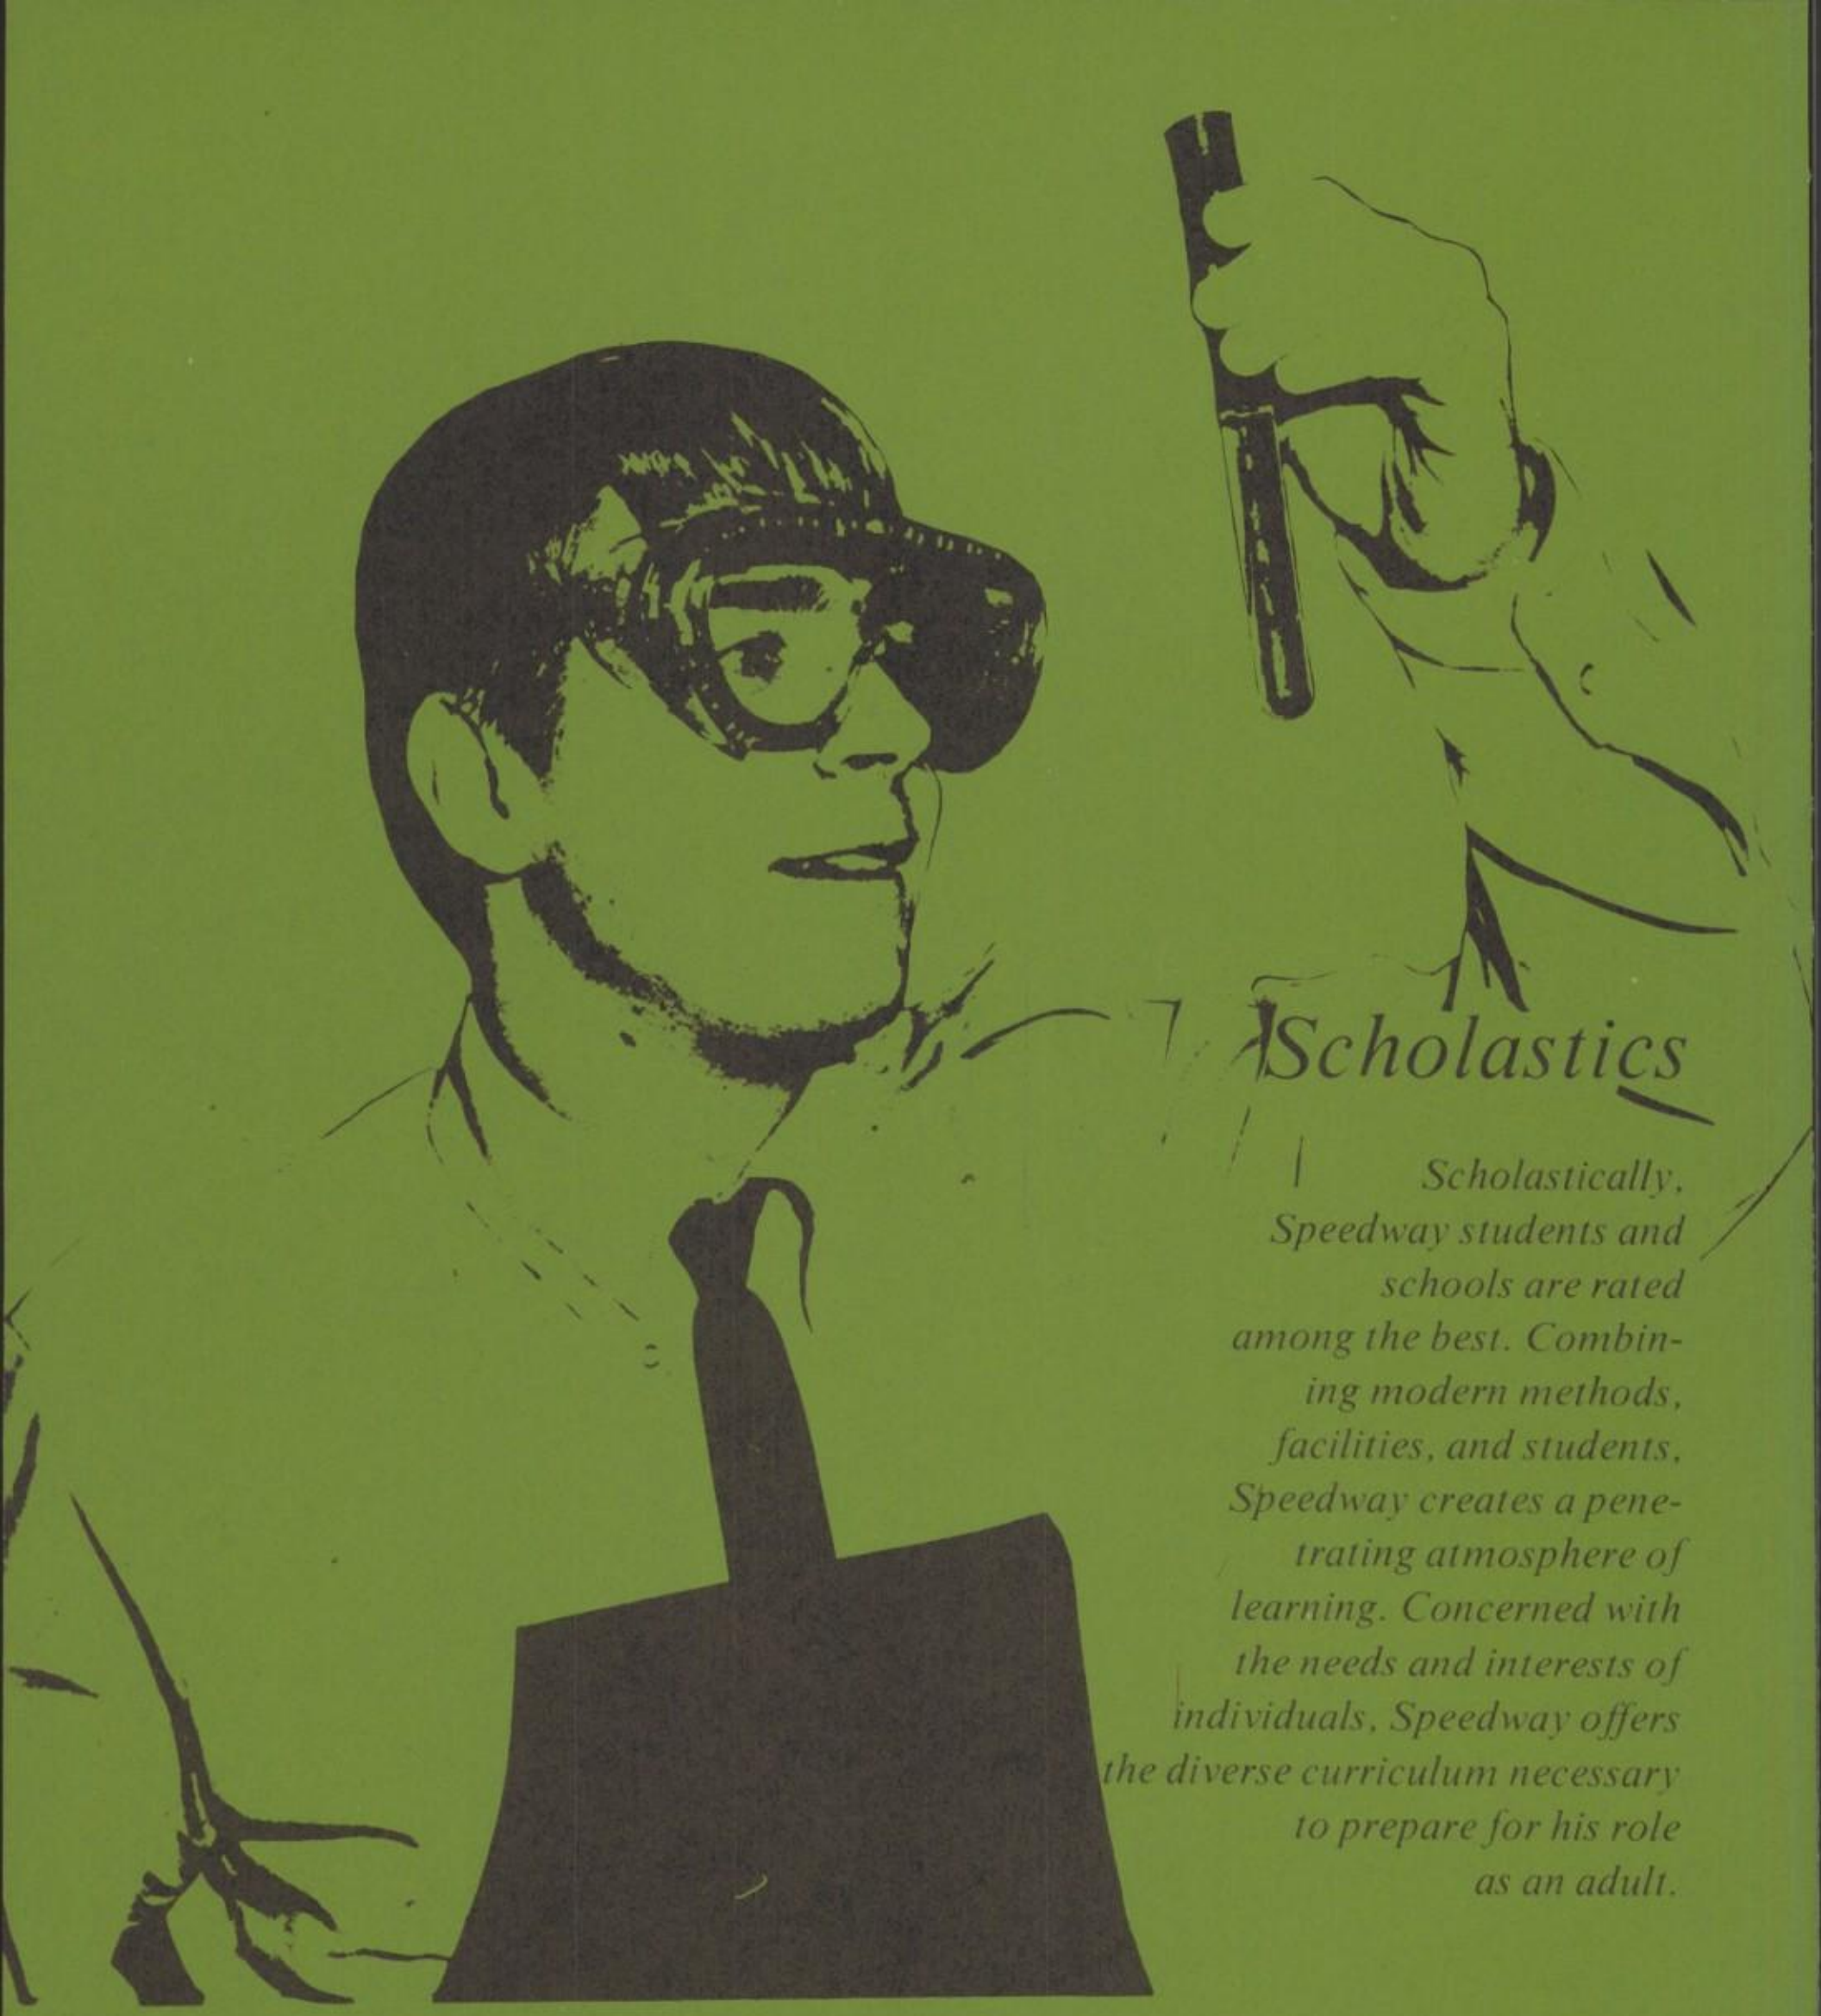
Allegiance Dictates an Integral Part of Duty, honor, and loyalty are the responsibilities of Speedway students. As the Vietnam war surged on, Speedway boys met their obligations by registering for the selective service in the high school guidance office. As an ever-present reminder of freedom, the American flag hangs in each classroom. The fifth-year English class, after a heated discussion on patriotism, began reciting the pledge of allegiance every morning to show respect and appreciation of freedoms enjoyed. While the Governments of the World class debated communism versus capitalism, Mr. Weller explained the intricate structure of United States government to all seniors. Another responsibility of Speedway students is being aware of international, national, and local news events by studying their weekly current events papers. These same students whose hearts swell at the familiar sound of the "Star Spangled Banner" will soon be the guiding adults of tomorrow's moving world.

SHS's Action

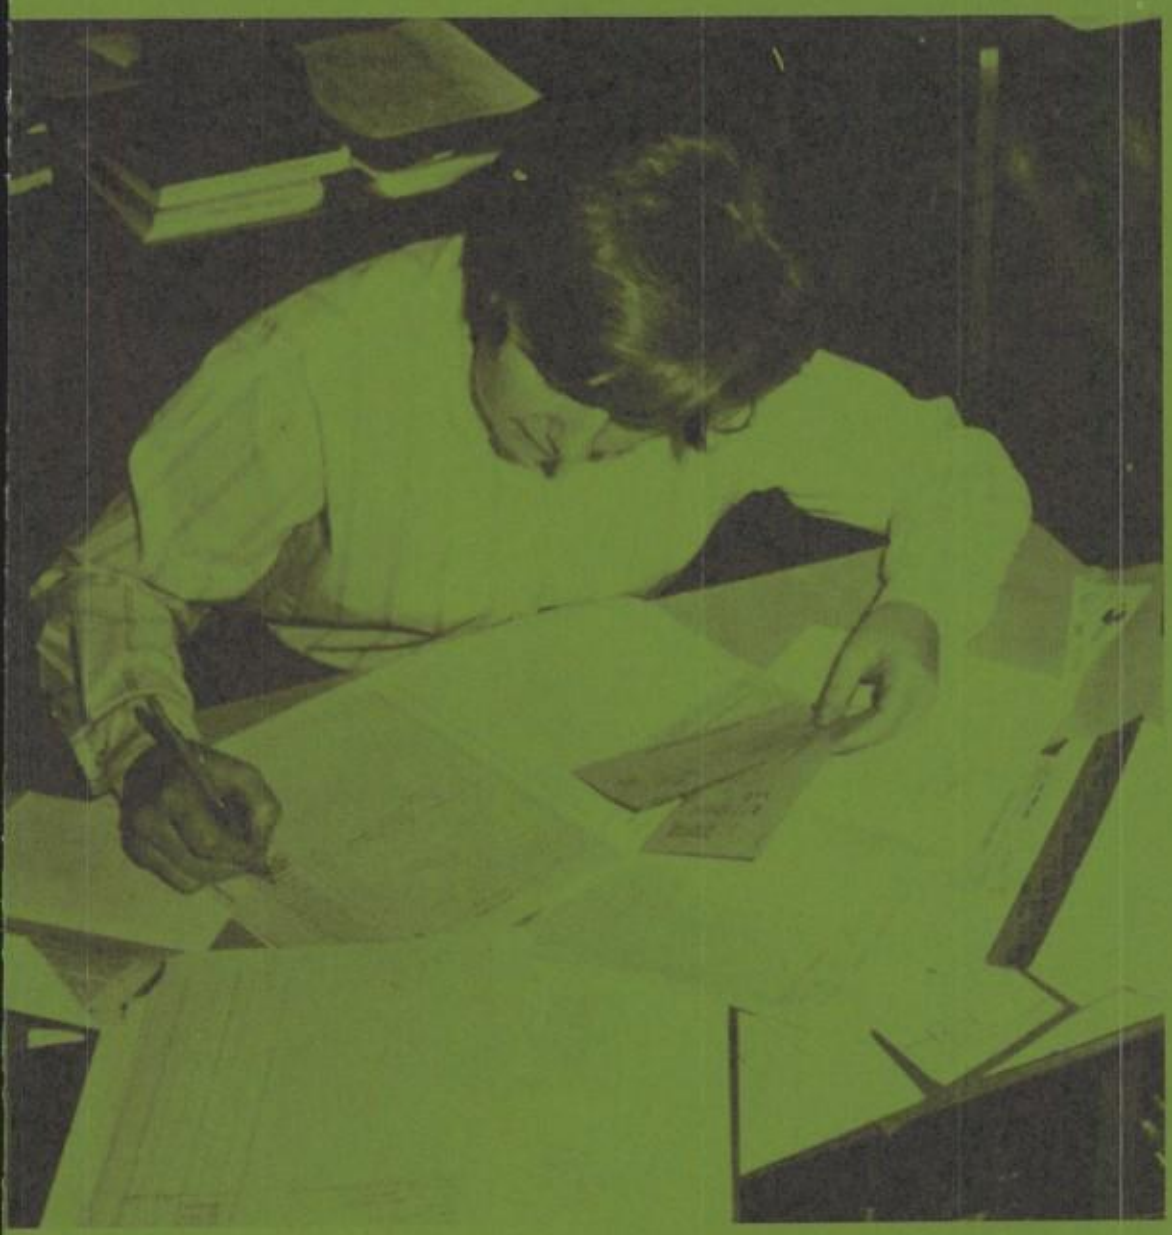




Scholastics

Scholastically, Speedway students and schools are rated among the best. Combining modern methods, facilities, and students, Speedway creates a penetrating atmosphere of learning. Concerned with the needs and interests of individuals, Speedway offers the diverse curriculum necessary to prepare for his role as an adult.

Accentuate Speedway



School Administration Lays Groundwork for Policy making and appraisal are the major functions of the Speedway School Board. They indicate official policies in regard to purposes and programs of the schools so that the superintendent and his staff can carry out their assigned duties. Then through careful examination they appraise the efficiency of the schools' operation and the value of all phases of the schools' activities.

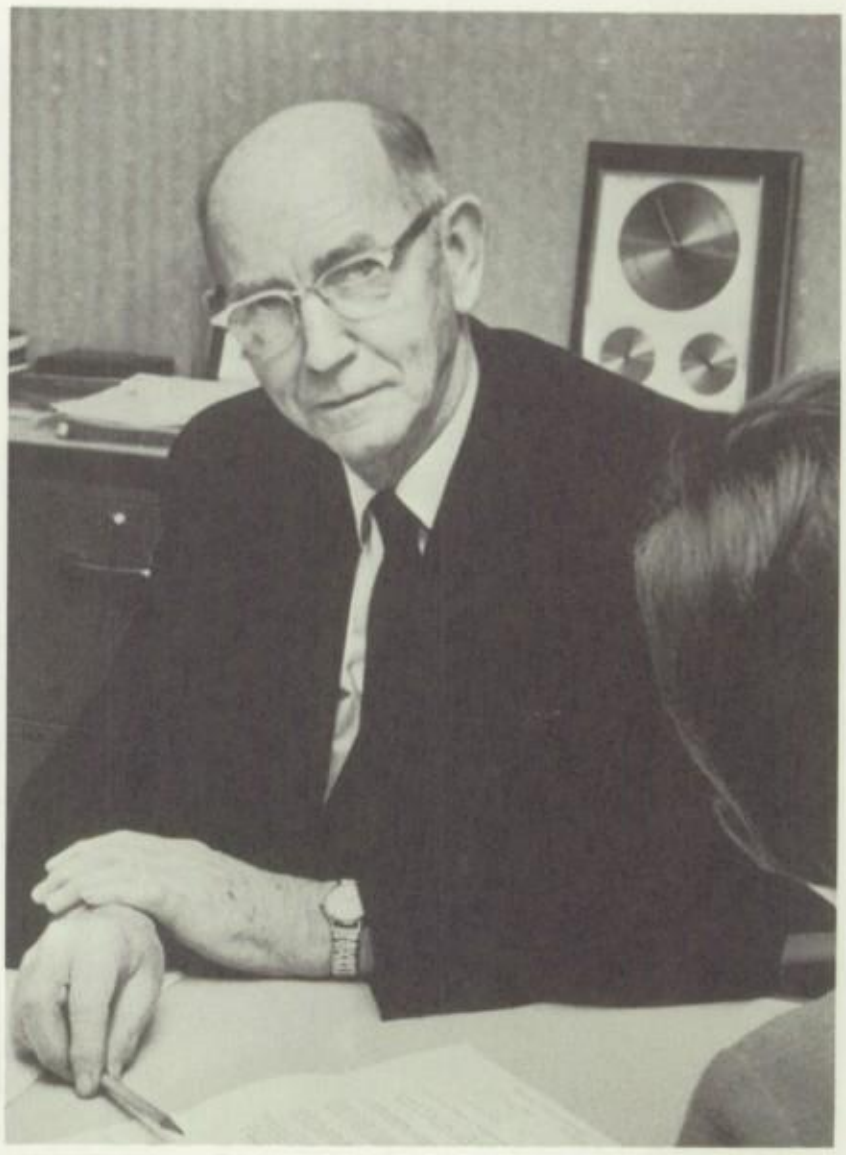
Speedway is unusually fortunate in attracting the high calibre of men who compose the Board—business and professional leaders in outstanding industries such as Allison Division of General Motors and Eli Lilly and Company.

The superintendent is the chief administrator of the School Town of Speedway, while the principal serves as head of his school. Specific duties are assigned to the assistant principal, treasurer, secretaries, and school nurse.

Speedway High School is very proud of the Special First-Class Commission they were granted last year, making them one of a very select group in the State of Indiana.



Lawrence Thompson, Speedway's Principal, provides counsel for many problems encountered by his students.

School Board members, Dr. Richard Griffith, Vice President; Theodore Rosebrock, President; and James Hardin, Secretary, look over plans for the remodeling of Speedway Junior High School.

Charlene Musgrave, Secretary, consults Richard Jordan, Superintendent, on another of his many business transactions.

SHS in Operation

One of Floyd Troth's duties as Assistant Principal is to make sure the permanent record of each student is kept up to date.

Besides providing valuable part-time assistance in the superintendent's office, Mary Orr brightens it with a cheery smile.

As the School Treasurer, Bonnie Pollard makes sure student treasurers, such as Carolyn Green, keep a strict account of club funds and dutifully turn in all the money.

Sharon Thomas and Karen Rigsby find the Gestetner a valuable asset with their secretarial duties in the high school office.

Efficient System

Zealous Speedway students donate their study hall time to help the school run smoothly by working in the three administrative offices. Distributing morning announcements and dispatching messages are among the duties of Miss Thomas and her office aides. Cheerfully interrupting study halls, guidance assistants bring blue slips to "lucky" students. Mr. Wicker and the counselors help Speedway students with program choices and changes as well as with college and career information. Keeping attendance records up to date constitutes a major portion of the work in the attendance office.

Also important in the operation of the school are the nurse and library assistants. Mrs. Cunningham and the nurse's assistants provide band-aids and the needed comfort for students who are ill. The library assistants sort and file books and magazines, making the Speedway High School library an enjoyable place for Speedway students and residents to come to read and study.

Aides' Tasks Vary According to Demand

In recent years visual as well as audio aids have become important in the process of learning. Here at SHS student projectionists relinquish their study time to make films and slides available to all classes. Behind the pageantry and glamour of the theatre productions, stage technicians co-ordinate the technical aspects of the show. From planning the menu to serving the finished meals, cafeteria employees and cafeteria assistants work closely together to keep Speedway High School students well fed.

Students Eliminate Language Barriers

Foreign language students, such as Annemarie Hietburg, build their vocabularies by reading the Spanish or German versions of Life Magazine and Reader's Digest.

Being led by the six IU Honors Program scholars, Speedway students attempt to master German and Spanish. First- and second-year Spanish classes are highlighted by films of South America and Spain, folk songs, and Spanish commercials. Grammar and verb conjugations are a challenge to third- and fourth-year classes. The fifth-year honor section places its emphasis on conversation and was visited this year by Señor Gutiérrez who spoke about his life in Cuba.

For a while, mastering the switches in the language lab proves more difficult to first and second-year German students than understanding the language itself. Third-year students concentrate on the geography of Deutschland. Reading Die Mittlestufe and memorizing "Der Handschuhe" acquaint Mr. Roe's fourth-year class with the literature of Germany.

Mark Holmes, Susan Najar, Robert Robinson, and Kent Priebe further their knowledge of Germany as they examine beer steins.

Leah L. Abrams, Judy Buckingham, Lillian P. Gutiérrez, Jo Nell Gwin, George E. Roe.

Cindy Berry, Beth Masariu, John Lemming, and Nikki Comsa provide second-year Spanish students with entertaining and educational skits.

Modernly Equipped

"You-can't-hardly-tell," laughed Mr. Nay in his fifth-year calculus class. Differentiating and integrating equations of a curve compose a part of the program of calculus. This year, Mr. Simons was chosen to establish the one-semester course, analytic geometry. Beginning math students attack first-year algebra and geometry, while business and general math provide Speedway students with necessary knowledge of the business world.

Moving into the southwest corridor on the second floor, students enter the realm of science. Under the direction of Mr. Clark and Mr. Frazier, freshmen biology students investigate the intricate structure of a crayfish and zoology scholars tackle the classification of the animal kingdom. Goggled chemistry students, with instruction from Miss Kroft, apply their knowledge of valances in the lab while Mr. Brook's physics class explores the mysteries of electronics.

Classrooms Yield Computer Competition

"That's way over my head," says Rick Aranjo as John Haley, Ronnie Stewart, and Pete Teagarden find the wavelength of sound.

Peggy Lewter, Marilyn Caplinger, and Lynn McConochie synthesize the molecule of an unknown substance.

Matt Hawkins manages to keep his angles, lines, and quadrants straight as he explains a geometry proof to his classmates.

Football momentarily diverts Mr. Johnson's train of thought during a business math class.

Students Master English Under Watchful Eyes

Assisting a new English teacher, Mrs. Bradley, Mike Masariu and Steve Allen attempt to master the erection of a projection screen.

In Developmental Reading, Rudy Bayt checks the number of eye fixations Becky Blackwell makes per line to help speed her reading.

Georgia Smock stretches Mr. Johnson's rule of only one notecard for a speech in her beginning speech class.

In order to break down any inhibitions of speaking before a group, Mr. Johnson developed comic situations for Practical English students, Pam Dowden and Ron Hall, to enact.

of Able Instructors

Improving vocabulary, enriching experiences, and correcting grammar are the main objectives of the Speedway High School English Department. The Honor English program, directed by department head, Grace Hine, provides students with the necessary background in literature and composition needed during future college years. Juniors broaden their literary background by reading such diverse books as Giants in the Earth and Hiroshima. The English department also builds knowledge of the framework of the English language for freshmen and sophomores.

Confronting an audience and Speech Instructor Don Johnson instills fear in most sophomores. Speech class is planned to teach good diction, poise, and self-confidence. Students are also taught the correct forms for outlines. More than one sophomore has experienced the typical shaking knees, wet palms, and cold sweat in the required English IV. As the semester closes, fears are conquered and sophomores discover themselves able speakers.

Marsha Bradley, Dale Glenn, WinEllen Gruber, Grace Hine, Don Johnson, Rose Kendall, Betty Sisco, Agnes Spencer, N. Andrew Wagner.

Linda Egler and Scott Wagner enliven the Shakespearean studies of their English class by portraying Romeo and Juliet.

Remembering the adage that practice makes perfect, Debbi Fieber rehearses her oratory before the long mirror.

Journalists Realize the Stringent Implications

Jim DeLisle, Vernon Sumner, and Janet Prows find extra hours are necessary to meet the bi-weekly deadlines of the Speedway Speedette.

of Deadlines

As Sports Editors Denny Warner and Steve Allen compose the football pages, Gena Cox and Jack Rustamier make sure the names in the yearbook match the pictures.

Yearbook literary staff members consult the typists to make sure all copy is letter-perfect. Working hard are Carleen Slagle, Bobbi Piper, Beverly Wells, Francie Tomlinson, Chrissie Fulton, and Pam Wegener.

Cropping pictures and planning layouts occupy Assistant Editors Becky Dunnuck and Dusty Lovick while Editor Linda Weiss provides the supervising force necessary to complete a successful yearbook.

Because this year's staff of the bi-weekly newspaper, SPEEDWAY SPEEDETTE, was one of the smallest ever, they found the production of the paper to be a real challenge. This efficient staff continued to experiment by using a new masthead. Speedway journalists study newspapers exchanged with local high schools and obtain ideas for many interesting articles.

In the fall, 17 seniors sold advertisements to local businesses to help finance Speedway's yearbook, the 1968 SPEEDETTE. Planning layouts, identifying students, writing copy, and selling subscriptions are a number of the duties of students enrolled in second-year journalism. The staff also plans yearbook pictures and sees they are taken. Senior composites are sold to the graduating seniors in the spring.

Election Year Proceedings Liven Social Studies

To enhance the understanding of the political philosophy of Socrates, Ted Fidger and Doug Rosebrock enact a scene from the "Meno" for the Governments of the World class.

Knowledge of the jury system was increased by holding a mock trial in government class.

Bruce Hutchings, Morris Pollard, Clyde Sallee, Ellen Stone, Dale Weller.

All Speedway students are confronted with the study of human society. Through the study of history, future news makers learn of the mistakes and successes of past generations. World History students begin their study with the complexity of the lives of prehistoric man and finish the course with a study of modern man, while junior scholars scrutinize the history of our own country. Seniors, guided by Mr. Weller, ponder the intricate system of United States government. Taking a broader look at political sciences, Governments of the World class seeks to strengthen students' understanding of all types of government.

Understanding the functions of government and the facts of history are important, as well as grasping man's behavior and social relationships. Through the one-semester courses of psychology and sociology, Speedway students learn the "why" of man's behavior. Consumer Education increases the understanding of the financial system of our country and the world.

Future Business Leaders Get First-Hand Experience

Reuben G. Foland, Deanna Lambert, Lois Metzger.

Ann Hendrickson's fingers fly fast and furiously as she transcribes her shorthand notes.

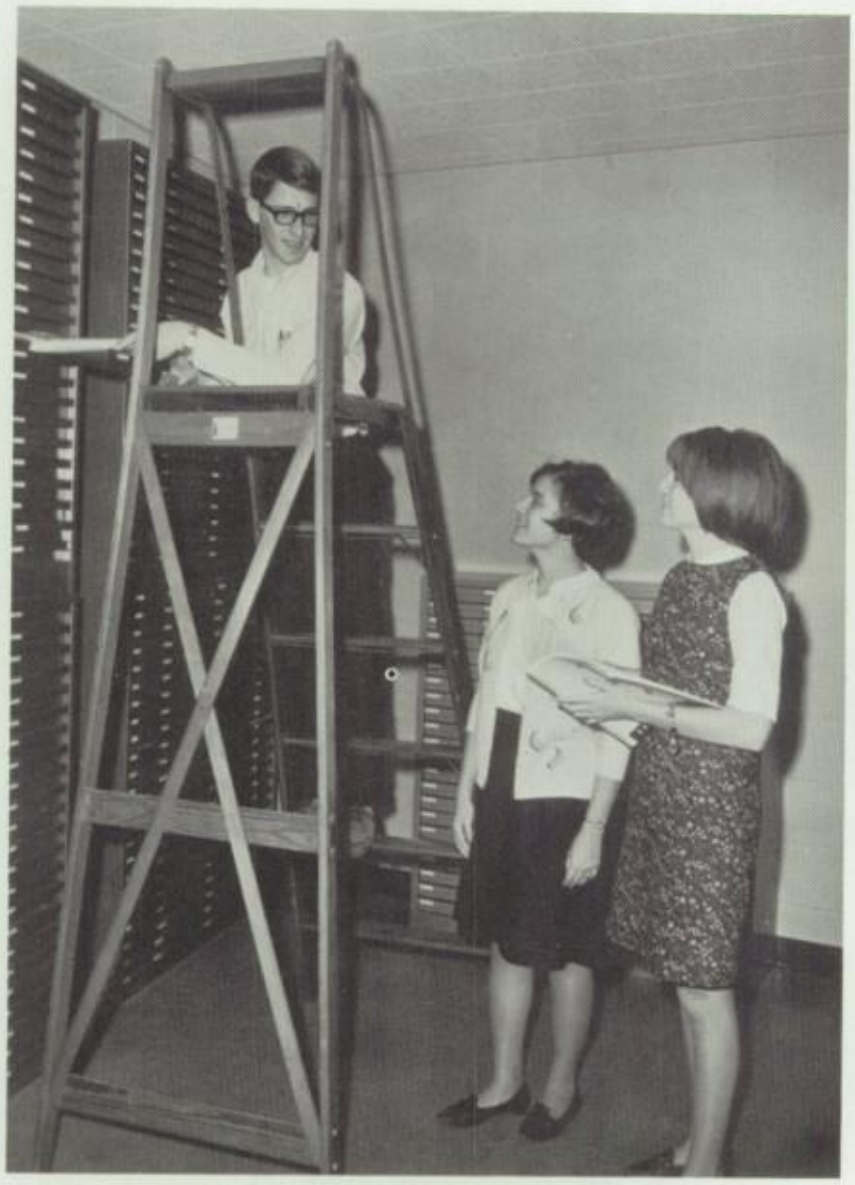
Addition by the touch method poses no problem for Carol Ten-Eick in Office Practice.

First-year typing students sometimes find it difficult to keep their fingers on the keys and out of the spaces.

Beginning typists become accustomed to practice drills and timed writings before they obtain proficiency certificates for 30, 40, or 50 words a minute. After becoming familiarized with an electric typewriter, nimble-fingered students increase their speed, accuracy, and neatness in second-year typing. Studying shorthand enables many girls to get a higher-paying job as a stenographer after graduation. Gregg shorthand symbols can be detected in other class notes of avid students. Transcription skills improve by employing helpful hints given by Mr. Foland.

In the first semester of their senior year, girls enrolled in Office Practice attempt to master the eccentricities of adding machines and dictaphones. Textbook material thoroughly covers many aspects of secretarial work. Two bookkeeping practice sets familiarize students with business forms from which they make journal entries. In computing net income and preparing statements, students analyze the entire bookkeeping process.

Fine Arts Attract



Bill Patterson gives Regina Torrella and Nancy Casady a helping hand in the music library by reaching for the "higher tunes."

Karin Kyle puts a record on the stereo as Rebecca Okken listens to her explanation to visiting Finnish teacher, Toini Heiskanen.

Music and art departments of Speedway High School introduce students to the varied samples of culture throughout the world.

Through the efforts of Mr. Wise and Mr. Horoho, students develop a taste for various kinds of music. The four choirs sing Negro spirituals, popular arrangements, and show tunes. In Theory and Harmony and Music Literature classes, students compose music and learn to appreciate the work of the great masters. Besides marching in parades and providing half-time entertainment at football games, the varsity band gives public concerts and convocations for the student body.

Students develop a taste for artistic design in the art classes. Adept Speedway students display their ability with mosaics and mobiles. Under the direction of Mrs. Roper, showcases are decorated and maintained. Six semesters of art offer students an opportunity to gain skills in this field.

Rhythmic drum beats come naturally to talented Bruce Roberts as he tries out the new drum set.

Talented SHS Students with Their Beauties

Cindy Medenwald, Tony Baner, and Kerry Blind, creators of daily chalkboard "doodles," pause to rest and refresh their artistic minds during their seventh-period art class.

Sophomore Karen Thomas demonstrates her knowledge of the art of sculpture as she forms a cat of papier-maché.

Charlotte Roper

Robert L. Wise

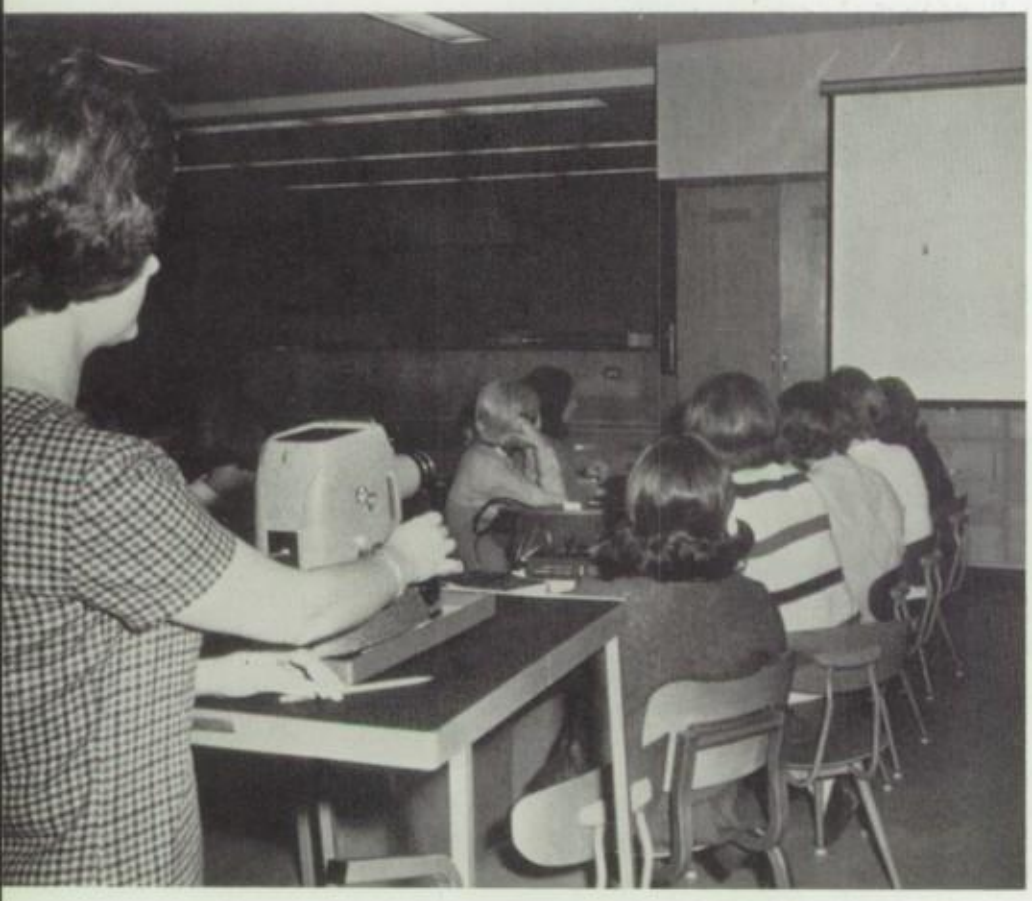
Essential to the art department is the relaxed, informal atmosphere which provides students with a chance to mold creative inspirations into tangible works.

Vocational Courses

Willing tasters like Bruce Lott are not easy to find for the homemaking department as Debbie Hood quickly discovers.

"Kissin' don't last—cookin' do!" spurs Speedway girls enrolled in homemaking class. Learning the basics of cooking and sewing is the task of first-year homemakers, while the second-year classes investigate the procedures of home nursing and child care in which they plan a party for neighborhood children. Studying in more detail the arts of cooking, sewing, and home decorating, the advanced classes prepare themselves for their lives as future wives and mothers.

While Speedway girls ready themselves for their roles as future homemakers, Speedway boys become adept in using wood and metal power tools in general shop. Students learn to produce orthographic and pictorial drawings and are introduced to all areas of planning design in mechanical drawing. Machine drawing, a more advanced course taught by Mr. Fishback, instructs boys how to draw nuts, gears, bolts, and make assembly and electric circuit blueprints. In Woods I boys are taught techniques and safety practices before designing and completing their own projects. Metals, offered second semester, includes the study of the characteristics and industrial uses of metals. After this phase of work, boys choose projects to demonstrate their knowledge of these aspects.



Mrs. Ries prepares to show her homemaking class slides on First Aid to supplement their Home Nursing course.

Debbie Gatlin checks to see if the pattern and color of her material complement her skin coloring and hair.

Develop Useful Abilities for Tomorrow

Bob Hoffman meets safety standards while using the band saw in general shop class.

John Gaughan gains knowledge in theory of shape description before continuing in industrial arts.

Operating a drill press is one of the many skills Mike Clark learns in his shop class.

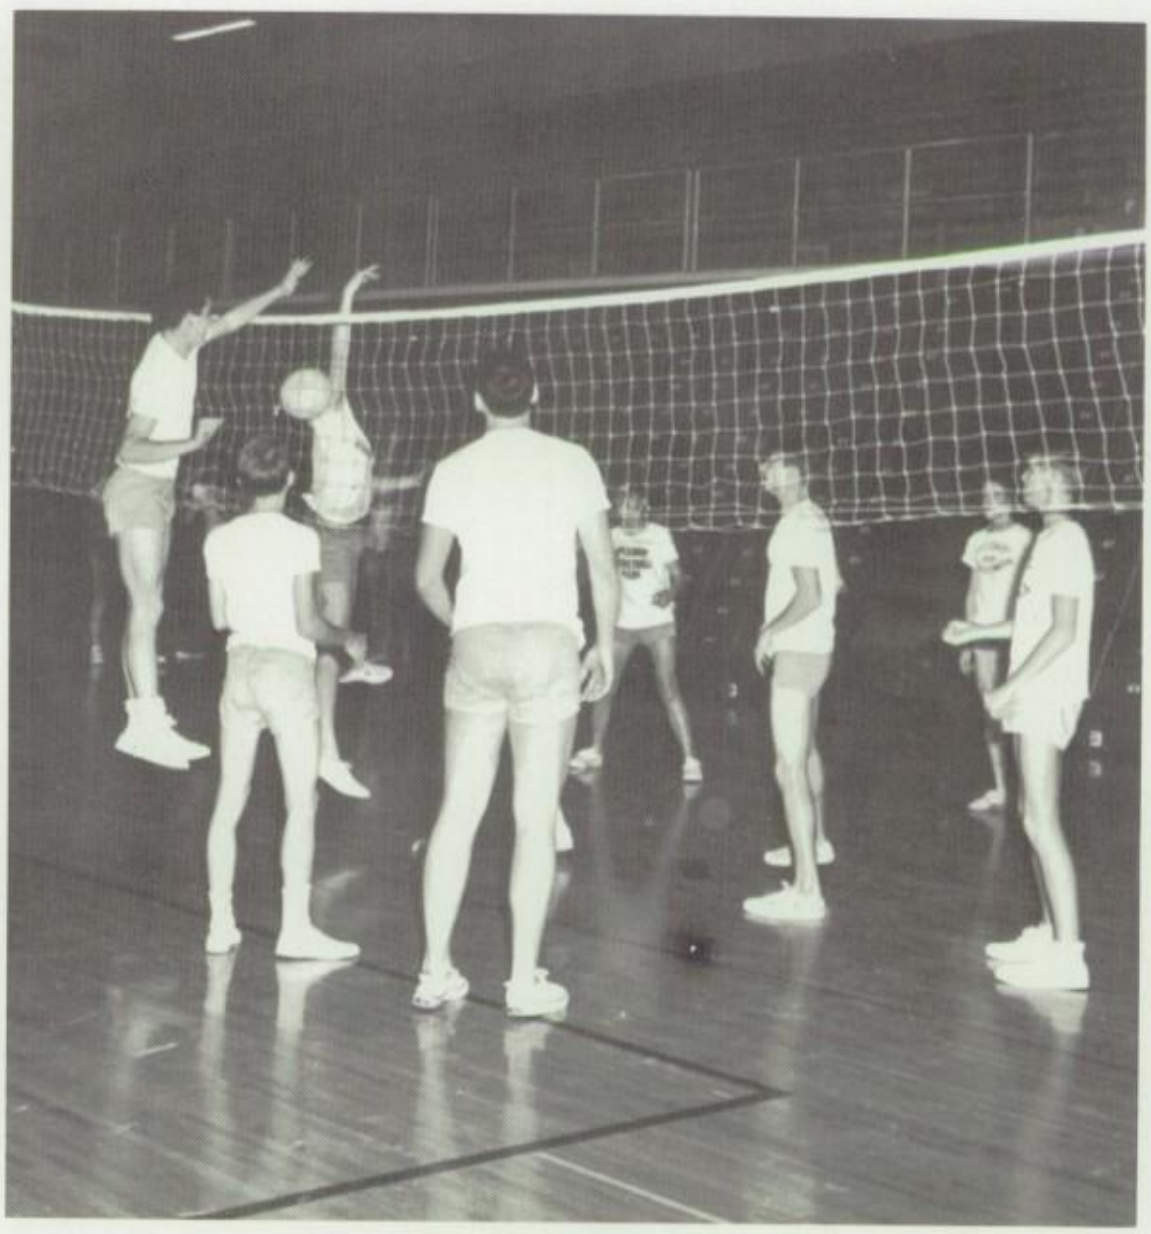
William T. DeVine, Frederick J. Fishback, Judith A. Ries.

Physical, Mental

Boy's swim classes plunge into a rousing game of water polo although the majority seems to have temporarily lost the ball.

Warm-up laps before the beginning of swimming classes don't seem to be too popular with the girls.

Robert S. Barkhaus, James L. Crumley, Frank W. Hamilton, R. Jeanne Hickman, Barbara Rudicel, Dalton H. Wicker.



Danny West executes an aerial ballet as he spikes the volleyball to score a point.

Guidance Part of Complete SHS Education

With the snow-covered parking lot providing an excellent practice area, driver's training classes learn how to react to a skid.

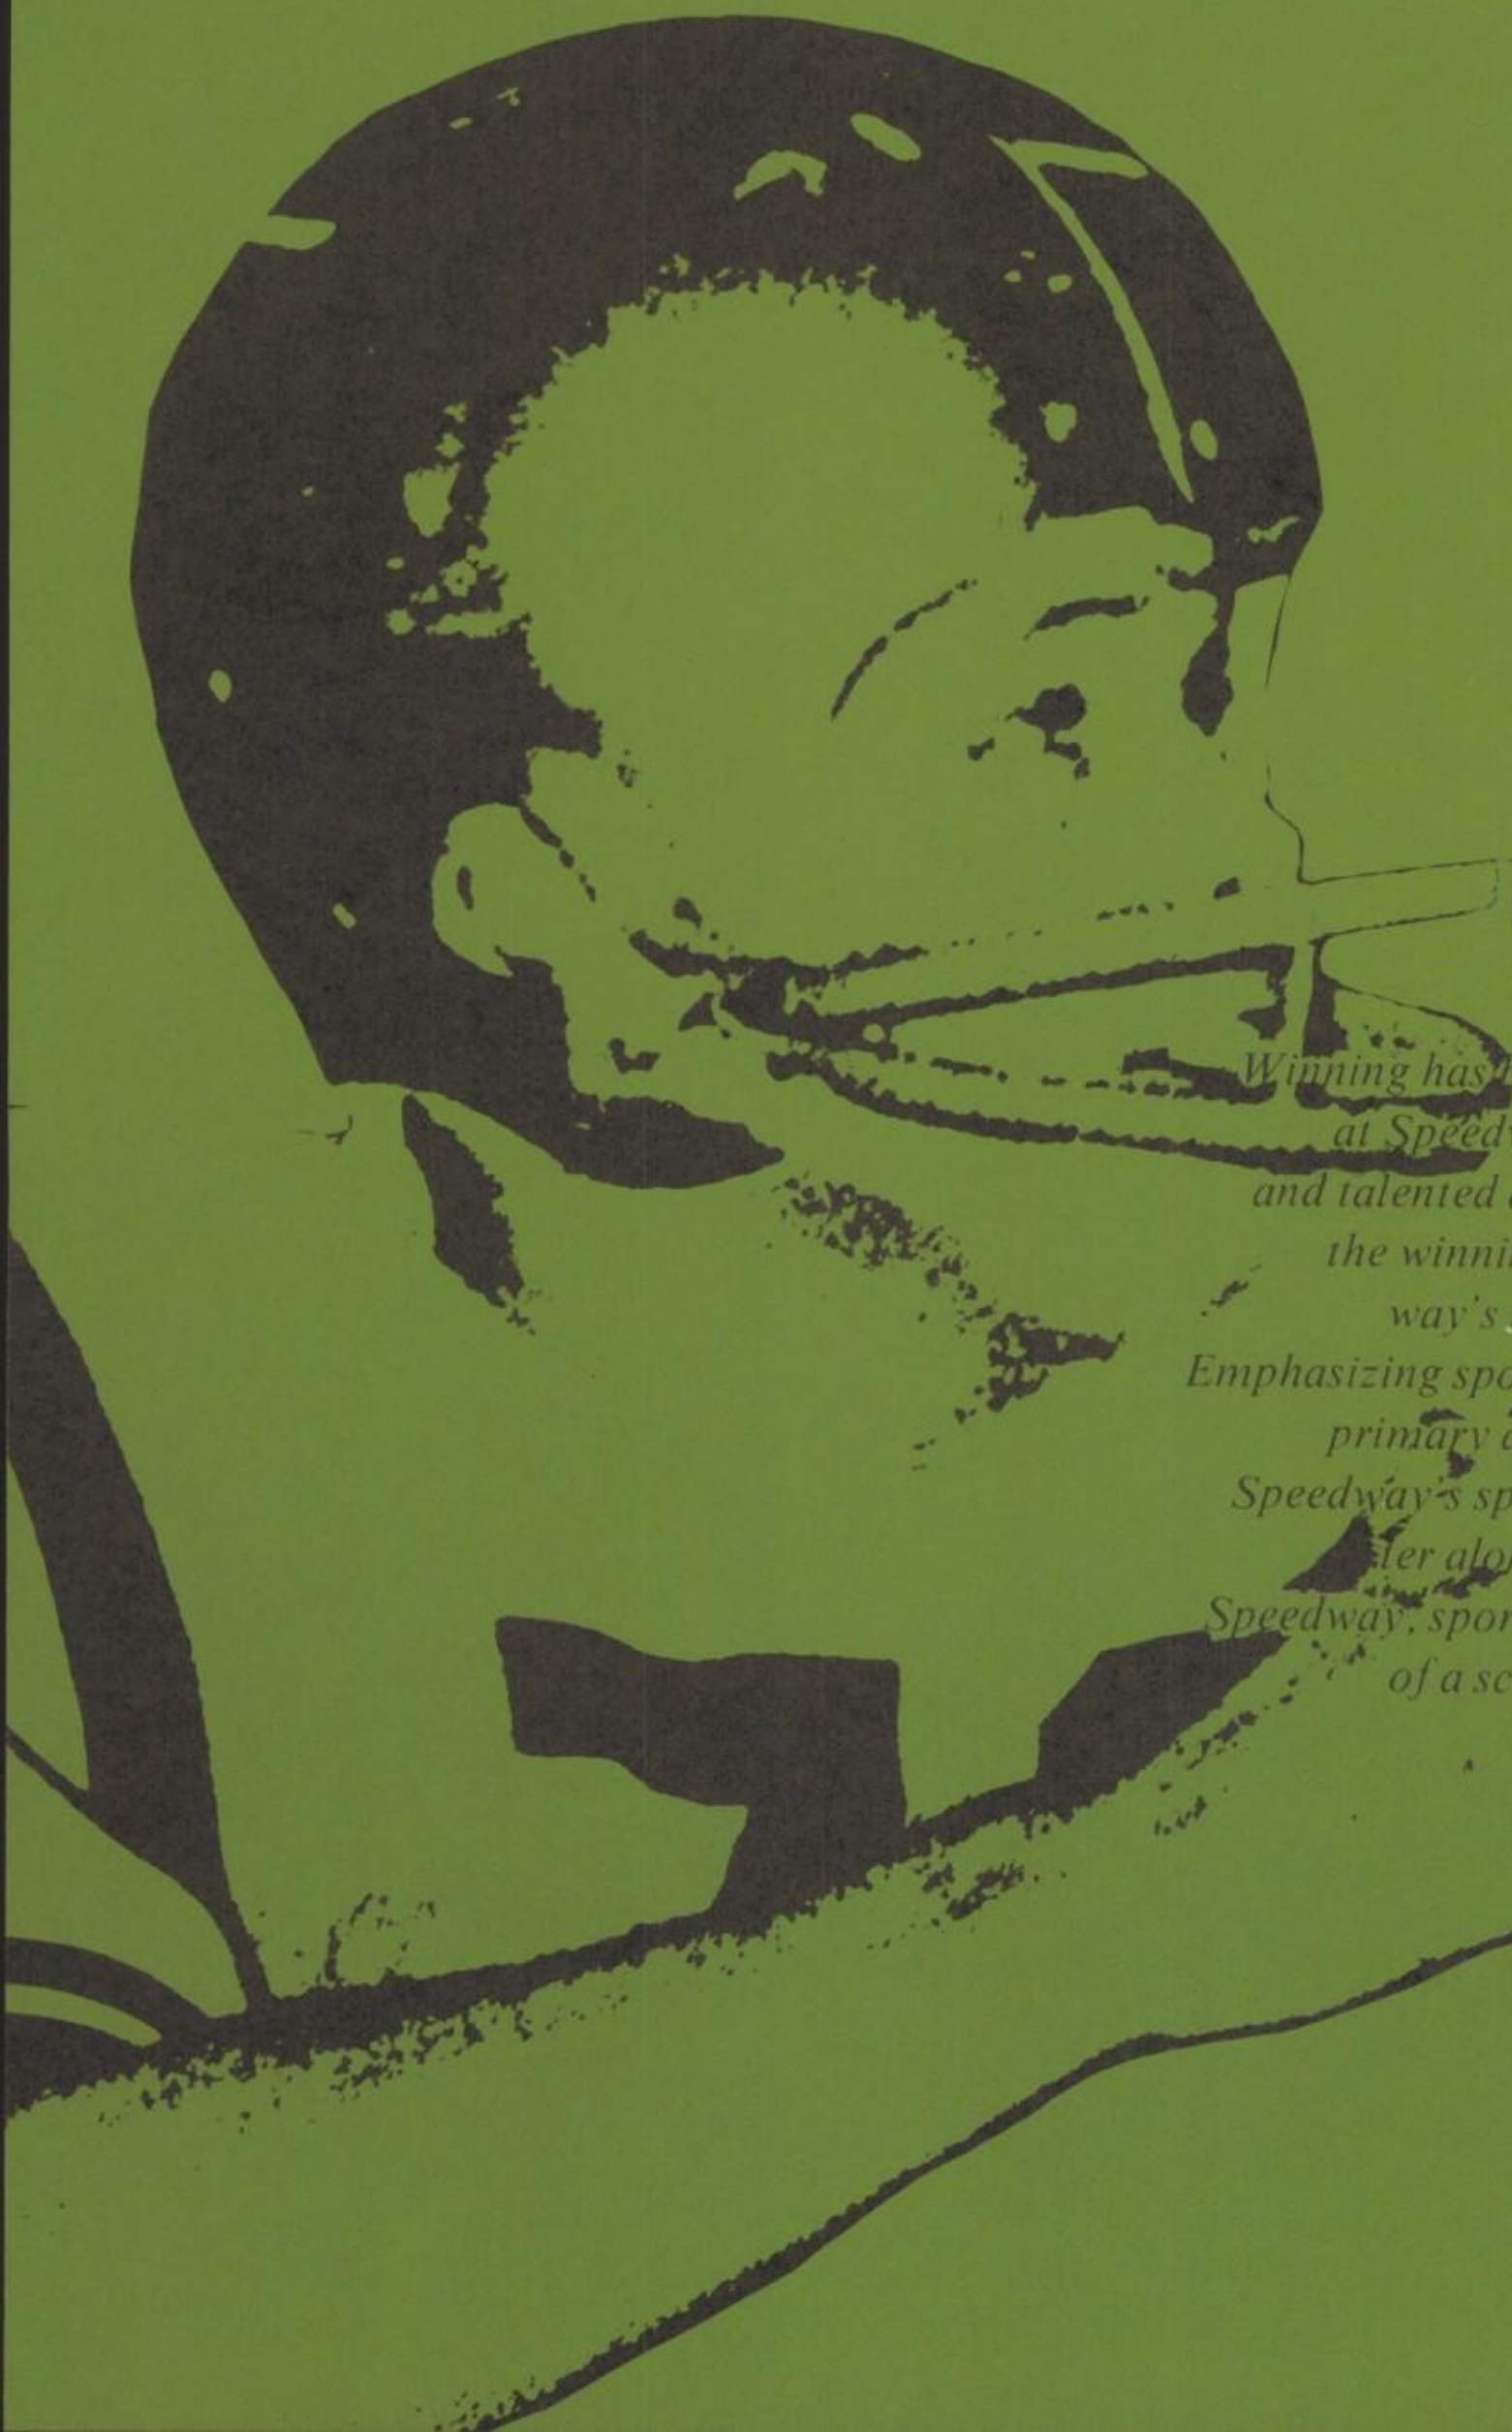
Always putting safety first, Carolyn Green and Mrs. Rudicel keep a tight rein on Jinny Sauer's training belt as she learns the basics of tumbling in the sixth-hour gym class.

Physical education provides the guiding framework to develop the physiques and figures of Speedway students. In the required course for freshman and sophomore boys, students enjoy playing basketball, baseball, volleyball, and tumbling. On the other side of the partition, girls participate in many of the same sports. Often the course includes the legendary strained muscles and "stylish" gym suits. Both girls and boys enjoy using the facilities of the indoor pool to increase their swimming, diving, and water-safety skills.

Health and Safety, a required sophomore course, acquaints students with a knowledge of diseases, both mental and physical. This course also includes sections on safety and first-aid procedures.

SHS offers freshmen orientation in an effort to insure a complete education. This class guides freshmen in organizing and choosing their high school subjects while prodding them to think beyond their senior year to careers and professions.

Crash helmet and tranquilizers in hand, Frank Hamilton begins his day as Speedway's Driver's Education teacher. Learning the rules and responsibilities of the road and the mechanics of an automobile comprise a major portion of the required driver's education course.



Victories

Winning has become a tradition at Speedway. Able coaches and talented athletes formulate the winning spirit of Speedway's nine major sports. Emphasizing sportsmanship as the primary aspect of athletics, Speedway's sports mold character along with bodies. At Speedway, sports are the epitome of a school on the move.

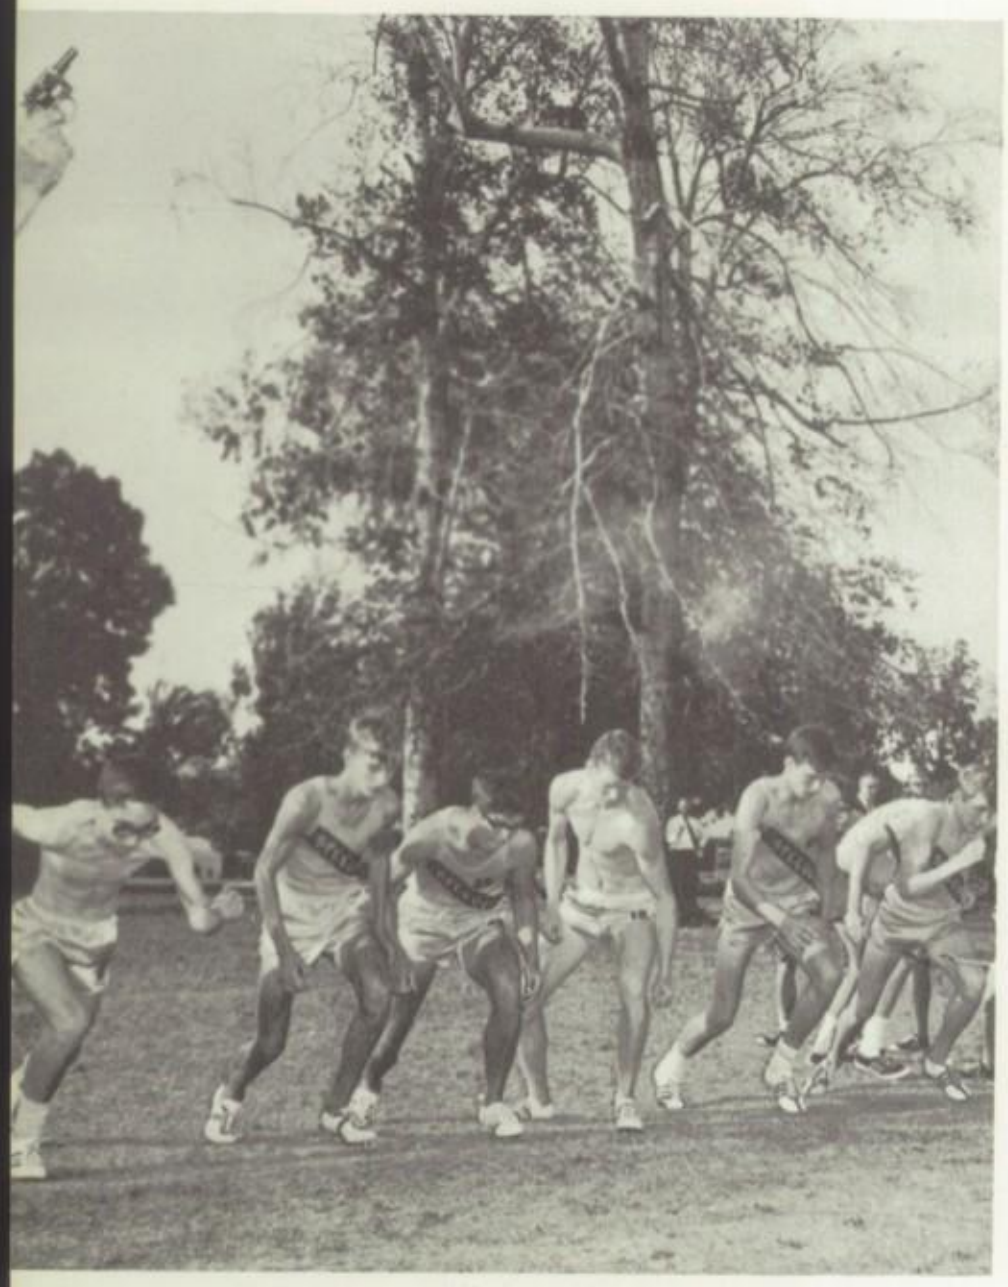
Tracks Laid by MVR



Coach John Owensby directed an upperclass-laden Cross Country squad to a 7—1 individual meet record. Competition in Mid-State, Marion County, Sectional, and two invitational meets supplemented the regular eight-meet schedule.

Coach Owensby lost four of his first seven runners from the 1966 team through graduation, but a quintet of two seniors and three juniors bettered themselves consistently this year to improve on that team's 6—2 mark. A brother combination, Jim and Don Muir, pushed each other most of the year for the number one position on the team.

In the Mid-State meet, Decatur Central, a team which Speedway had defeated earlier, nipped the Plug harriers by a slim margin depriving them of the first-place trophy.

At the fall sports banquet, Jim Muir was awarded the Most Valuable Runner trophy, while Joey Toms won the honor of being named the Most Improved Runner. The return of three varsity letter winners leaves hope for another successful season in 1968.

Paul Luther, Pete Teagarden, and Joey Toms form the hard-running trio of Sparkplug harriers fighting for positions against runners from Plainfield and Greenwood.

Sophomore Tom Gilbert leads a four-man rush as the Sparkplugs defensive unit crashes in to block a Greenwood punt.

As Speedway started its 1967 football season with only 9 returning lettermen, sports writers predicted an uphill grind for the squad. Coach Ralph Johnson, along with Bill Clark, James Crumley, and Bruce Hutchings, took the inexperienced squad and molded from it the first undefeated, untied season in twenty years.

Darrell Rains and Scott Musgrave took sports writers by surprise as they established themselves as Marion County stars in their respective positions. Darrell's long runs from his halfback position situated him as the leader in the "B" division scoring race.

A climactic ending to the season came at the deciding Mid-State Conference title game with Plainfield as Darrell Rains broke his ankle in the second period of the sleet-infested game. Junior Cecil Rupe replaced Darrell and scored the only touchdown in the 7—0 decision, giving the 'Plugs the Mid-State crown.

Individuals were singled out, but it took a definite team effort by all to achieve the perfect season, a tough act to follow for the 1968 Varsity Squad.

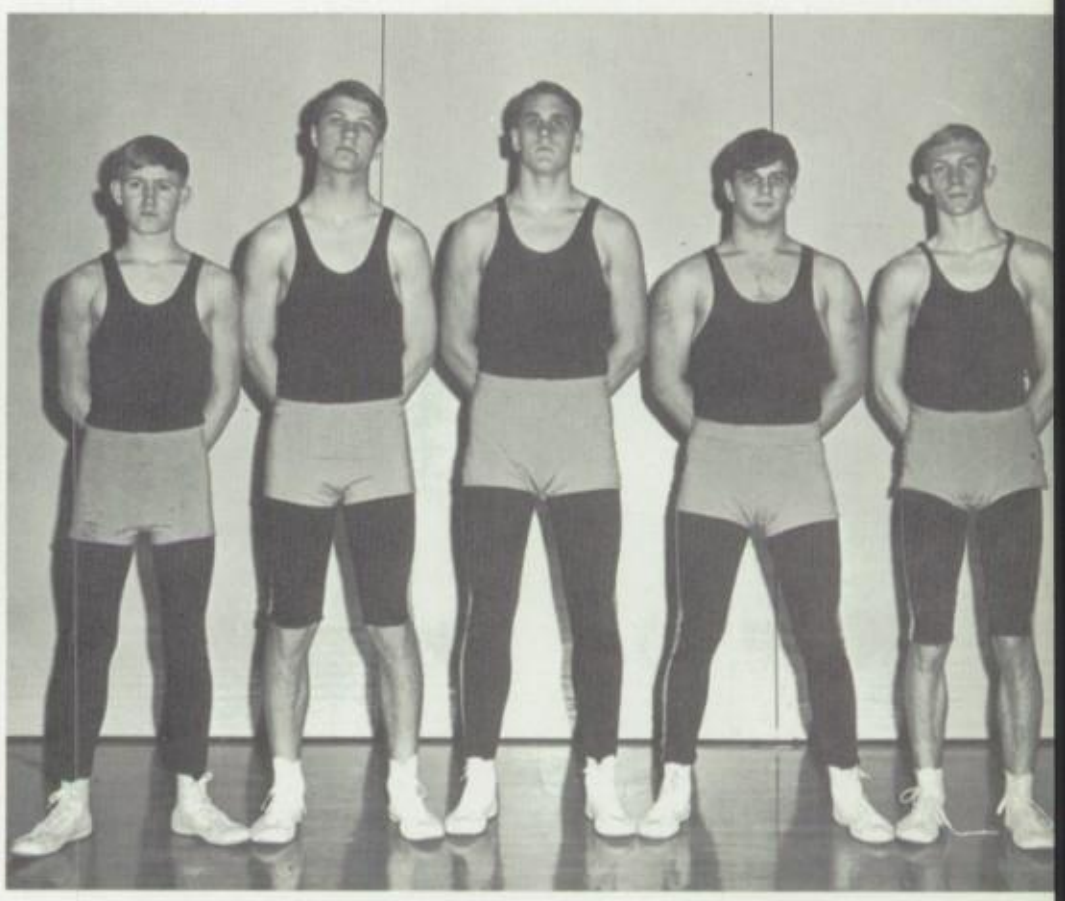
Varsity Wrestling Squad After Rebuilding Year

Although their record was only 2 wins, 9 losses, and 1 tie, the youthfulness of this year's wrestling squad supplied Coach Frank Hamilton with high hopes for the 1968-69 season.

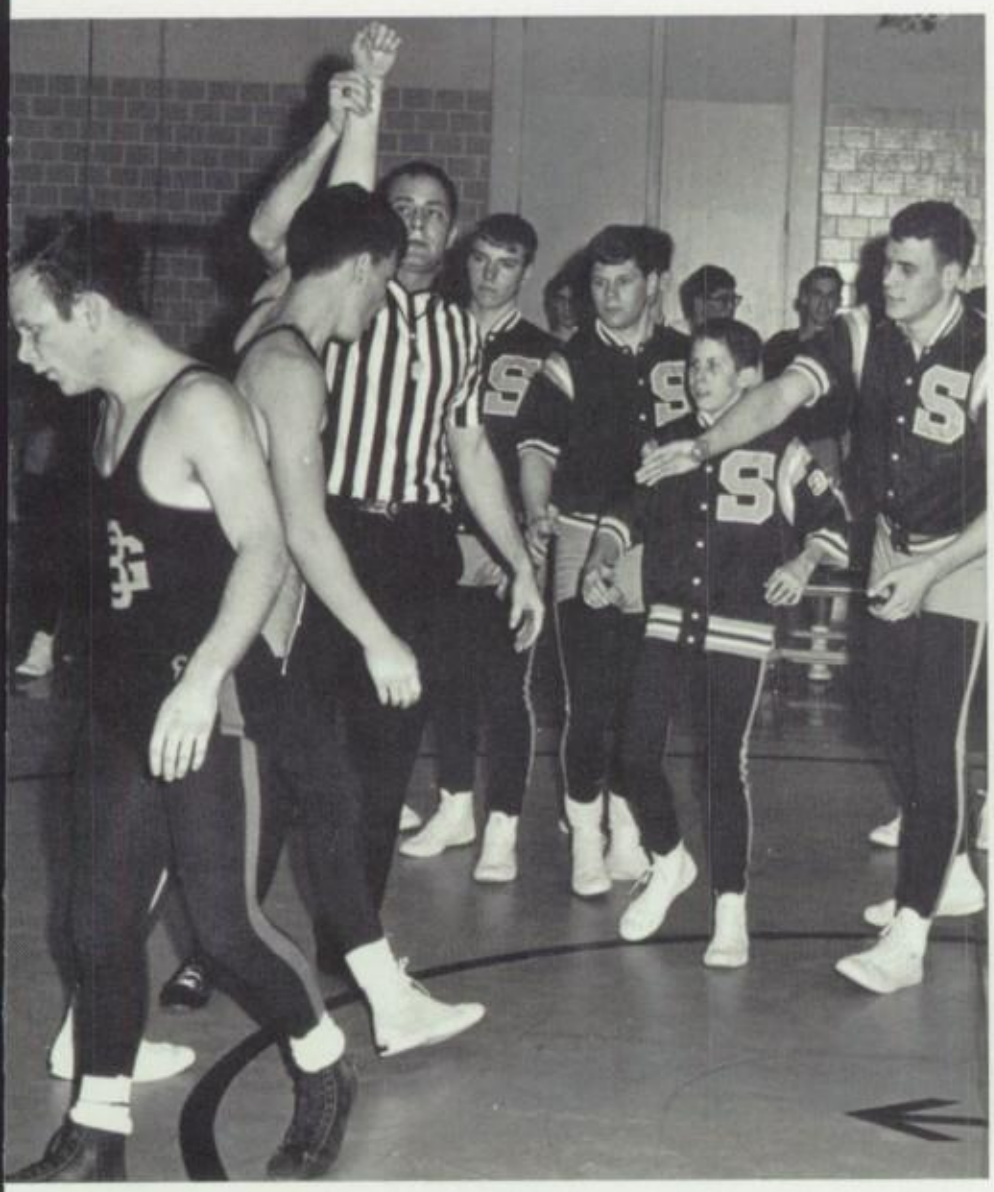
Tom Crawford, a junior, had the distinction of being the first underclassman to win a sectional, first Speedway wrestler to win a regional crown, and first to go to the state meet.

There were five seniors on the squad. Captain Dick Morrison upheld the honor of the upperclassmen with a 17—5—1 record. Jim DeLisle was also vital to the squad as he won his weight division in the Mid-State 154-pound.

At the winter sports banquet, Tom Crawford received the Most Valuable Wrestler award. Sophomore Mike Crider was named "Mr. Tough" by squad members. Sophomore Neil Oslos, having recorded the most pins for the season, was Most Improved. Don Hessel was awarded the Sportsmanship trophy.



Five seniors, Dick Morrison, Greg Patterson, Mike Masariu, Jim DeLisle, and Dave Taylor, form the experienced nucleus of the 1967-1968 wrestling squad.



Neil Oslos, winner of the Most Improved Wrestler award, is congratulated by teammates after pinning his Beech Grove opponent.

In a primarily rebuilding year for wrestling, freshmen, sophomores, and juniors joined forces on the reserve and freshman squads, learning various take down, escape, and reverse motions. In matches against prime county and city opposition, the young grapplers proved their varsity potential. The reserves were barely below .500 with a 5—6—1 season. The freshman squad added a second place in the Mid-State meet to their honors. Cliff Williamson was awarded the Most Promising Freshman trophy.

Netters Take Second in County, Mid-State

After losing 1967 Marion County Athlete of the Year, John Allen, and the leading rebounder in the county, Dave Bennett, the only thing for Coach Morris Pollard to do with his 1967-68 basketball squad was to start building.

During the season, the team faced many formidable foes. In Southport the Plugs battled a team which, for most of the year, was ranked seventh in the state by the UPI. Although beaten by the Cards by five points earlier in the season, Speedway met them again in the semifinal game of the Marion County Tournament. Ron Byram hit three pressure-packed free throws in the final minute to give Speedway a 52—51 decision over Southport and the upset of the tourney.

In the final game of the regular season, Speedway traveled to Center Grove to do battle for possession of the Mid-State basketball crown. The efforts of hot-shooting Bill Williams and Tom Gilbert, teaming up for 46 points, were not enough to halt Rick Coffey's 36-point outburst, giving the Trojans a three-point victory margin.

After finishing a fine 14—8 season, award winners were honored at the winter sports banquet. Mike Pollard collected the Blase Sportsmanship and Hanna Scholastic awards. Rick Aranjo won the Rumple Foul Shot and Most Valuable Player trophies. Jim Eppen was the only non-senior to win an award, that being the Rebound award. Senior Steve Allen was named Most Improved over the 1967-68 season.

Jim Eppen is outclassed by Washington's all-state center.

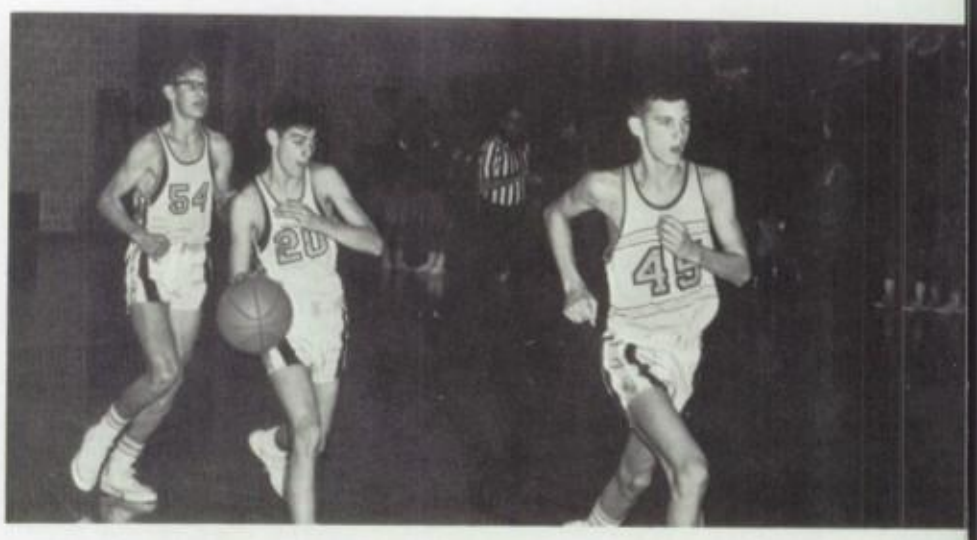
Hardwood Competition Develops Personal

Reserve and freshman basketball teams showed their worth during the 1967-68 season. The reserve squad was able to win its last four games of the season, thus giving them a record of 8—8 for the year. The freshmen set a standard which will be hard for any future freshman squad to follow with a 17—1 record, one of the best ever compiled in the school's history.

The reserve squad, led by Coach Crumley, was junior studded. Scott Musgrave, Gary Crawford, Brad Black, and Denny Dirks led the team's attack during a challenging season.

Coach Dale Glenn led the class of 1971 into battle and emerged with many fruits of victory. The Speedway Invitational, a new tournament with Pike, Manual, and Ritter, provided the team with a new trophy. The Plugs were nipped in the last seconds of the semifinal game of the Mid-State Tourney, depriving them of that crown.



Steve Miller, Jim Rustamier, and John Griggs position themselves to set up a scoring play during a freshman game with Washington.

Diligent Practice Helps Swim Team

As the 1967-68 swim team prepared in November and December for their upcoming schedule, they knew it would be a murderous one, meeting four top teams in the state—Bloomington, Southport, Lawrence Central, and Kokomo. The team, however, persevered and established itself as one of the state's top ten with a very respectable 5 win—6 loss record. Although there were only four seniors on the team, the youth of the squad worked as a stimulant rather than an inexperience factor. In the state meet, Speedway placed five individuals as well as a relay team in the competition.

At the winter sports banquet in March, Jim Muir carried off the Most Valuable Swimmer trophy. Mark Wraight achieved the Most Improved award, and Steve Bailey was cited for having the largest point total of all other swimmers on the team. Terry Hart was honored for having the most first place finishes on the team.

As the "Swimmers, come to your marks" command is given, Neal McConochie, Mike Albrecht, and Terry Thompson tense for the start of the 100-yard Individual Medley.

Timers anxiously await sophomore Mark Wraight in the 100-yard backstroke, an event in which he placed 3rd in the state meet.

Senior Pete Teagarden gets a whole new perspective of the pool in diving competition, an event in which he won two varsity letters.

SHS Girls Undefeated as

Not all of the athletic prowess at Speedway was held by the boys, as the girls' swim team ploughed through five opponents for an undefeated season. Headed by Mrs. Rudicel, the team, consisting primarily of underclassmen, established three GAA State Swim records in the state swim meet.

The meet was held at the Speedway pool and eleven schools participated. Of the twelve events in this year's meet, Speedway girls topped the list in eight. Linda Hart, a freshman, established a new state mark for the 100-yard Butterfly as Debbie Sunier set new records in the 200-yard Freestyle and 200-yard Individual Medley.

Awards were presented at the season's end as a banquet was given the girls at the Stockholm House. The Best Sportsmanship award was received by Linda Hart. The Most Deserving Diver award was given to Nancy Blair. Debbie Sunier won the Most Valuable Swimmer trophy.

Tennis, Golf Develop Importance of Individual

Another successful season was experienced by the 1968 golf squad with a 10—3 record. Additional hope was added for next season's prospects in that the team loses only two seniors, Jef Cork and Dusty Lovick.

During the season, the team's home matches were played at the nine hole course inside the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The golfers experienced special satisfaction towards mid-season when they defeated two of the top teams in the county, North Central and Southport, in a three-way match. Although losing to Center Grove earlier in the season, Speedway bounced back to defeat that team and five others while winning the Mid-State. This Mid-State triumph assured Speedway of once again earning the All-Sports trophy for the conference.

Jef Cork received the Most Valuable trophy at the spring sports banquet. Doug Manley, a junior, was distinguished as Most Improved.

During the 1968 season, Coach Jim Simons faced two enormous problems. The first was a tough schedule containing four of the top teams in the county, North Central, Southport, Lawrence Central, and Pike. The second problem was that he had no lettermen from the previous year to compete with these schools.

As the season progressed, the varsity tasks were handled by a single senior, two sophomores, and two freshmen. Experience was the team's need, and competition in two tournaments aided in this process. Even though attaining only a 4 win—8 loss season, Coach Simons has every right to look forward to next season as eight of the first ten players on the squad were either sophomores or freshmen.

At the spring sports banquet sophomore Rick Rains won the Most Improved award, while senior Denny Warner was named the Most Valuable.

Underclassmen Make Speedway Track Team Potent

Although the team record of the 1968 track team was less than dazzling, a combination of young talent and a few surprise finishes in meets left Coach John Owensby with hope that the saying "wait 'til next year" will not be just an idle chant.

This year's team contained only two scoring seniors, distance runner Pete Teagarden and shot putter Bruce Lott. Two of the top performers for the year were Ron Byram and Jim Eppen. In the Mid-State meet, he established a school record in the 880-yard run. Jim, one of the better high jumpers in the county, was the lone Speedway representative to the state track meet.

At the spring sports banquet, Jim Eppen accepted the Most Improved trophy, and Ron Byram was named Most Valuable by Coach Owensby.

Scott Musgrave dashes down the first base line in an attempt to evade the waiting first baseman.

Coach Bill Clark's baseball crew was one of the few Speedway teams which had experience. Twelve seniors occupied uniforms on this year's team, making it difficult for any juniors or sophomores to gain experience.

Dick Price won his second varsity letter as a pitcher with a 6 win—4 loss record. Dick's best game was a one-hitter over Brownsburg. Catcher Rick Aranjo finished his high school career by being the only unanimous choice on the all Mid-State team. By winning their varsity letters, Rick and Jim Muir gained enough athletic points for their school keys.

At the season's end, awards for Most Valuable and Most Improved were given. Rick Aranjo was named the MVP, while Denny Pelley was selected as having shown the greatest improvement.

Boys' Glee Supplements

A deep-voiced addition to the music department this year is the new Boys' Glee Club. Making their debut at the Choral Festival, the Boys' Glee Club was soon a valuable and accepted organization at Speedway. Their performances at the Spring Music Concert and the Spirit of America convocation served to bolster their popularity. The added low voices in "Battle Hymn of the Republic," a traditional number at the spring concert, enhanced the beauty of the song.

Cadet Band prepares beginning musicians for membership in the larger Varsity Band. Students increase their technical ability and learn the fundamentals of marching. The largest Cadet Band in many years, they tackled several difficult selections for their March 26 performance.

Spirited half-time shows add pageantry to the year's winning football season. Drum majors, Ruth Anne Gallatin and Jim Muir, instill pride and enthusiasm in the band throughout the marching season. A visit to the Bloomington campus for IU's Band Day highlighted the fall trips.

The music department held their first band concert in January. This well-attended performance featured the newly formed Stage Band in their first public appearance.

Endless boxes of tissues kept flag corps members and twirlers busy weeks before homecoming. While the band polished its half-time routines, the girls made a colorful flower arch for the Homecoming Queen and her attendants.

In April, seniors were honored at the annual band banquet, while underclassmen eagerly waited to fill in the ranks for the coming year. Band members finished the year by participating in the 500-Mile Race activities in May.

"Break-a-leg!" These words launch many Speedway students to victory at Saturday morning speech contests. By participating in these contests, students earn the right to join the National Forensic League. After accumulating 25 points, students are awarded their first degree. This year several veteran students have earned 250 points, the fourth degree, and a ruby for their membership pin. Such awards help make 5 a.m. reveille for trips to contests in other towns all over the state more worth while.

Student Theatre, sponsored by Don Johnson, produced four plays and arranged the technical work for the musical. To complete settings and insure authenticity and durability, stage crews worked after school daily. Lighting "experts" used the catwalk and the rather complicated system of lighting controls to obtain the best effects on the set. Then the actors and actresses brought life and laughter to the shell of the world produced by the technical crews. Activities were not entirely concerned with theatrical productions, however, as members of Student Theatre sponsored a float for the Homecoming parade and candidates for Athletic King and Queen.

Casts Put in Weeks of Rehearsal

Student teacher, Miss Vail, directs the stage business to present a polished production of the "Plain Princess."

Producing four plays this year kept Student Theatre active and interested. Mr. Wagner directed the first presentation, My Three Angels. Three jailbird "angels" tried to aid a rather absentminded shopkeeper and his daughter. This subtle comedy entertained audiences with its sparkling wit and enjoyable characters. All The Way Home was of an entirely different mood. This drama called for the first two-story set built on the Speedway stage. Costuming, lighting, and setting all contributed to the extremely fine job done by the actors and actresses.

Second-semester Thespian work was centered about the production of Under the Sycamore Tree, a comedy by Samuel Spewack. The entire play took place inside an ant hill, the queen's throne room. It involved one ant who, taking his cues from the human world, tried to civilize the ant colony. This show posed many problems to the technical crews who had to envision how an ant's telephone, furniture, and even clothing might appear.

The fourth play was a child's fantasy entitled The Plain Princess. It was presented after school before many excited, wide-eyed grade-schoolers.

Plain Princess Debbie Fieber is a poor loser as she continually misses her mark. Queen Karen Thomas, servant Cathie Doak, and King Bob Harbin referee and keep score.

Prince Charming reveals the transformed Plain Princess to their overjoyed servant.

Headed by President Rick Aranjo, the Varsity Lettermen's Club, an organization of Speedway athletes, hosted the first annual pig chase. This exciting event was highlighted by a pig that refused to be chased. After Mr. Clark, club sponsor, greased the "critter" with cooking oil, a multitude of yelling, tennis-shoed, stick-holding pig chasers descended upon the poor, unsuspecting creature only to have it collapse in the middle of the football field. All those in attendance hope that the Lettermen's Club will be pig-headed enough to host another such event next year.

A snowy night in February was warmed by the heated buying and selling of captive Lettermen at the annual Slave Dance. The peak of the evening was the purchase of Mr. Clark by one eager female.

In an effort to boost SHS spirit, Girl's Booster Club, headed by President Ginny Tyler, conducted a reform in the club. For home basketball games, seats were assigned in the gymnasium according to class, and yellow, brown, and white capes were distributed. The Zionsville Sectionals launched a campaign to sell gold mums. With many new and participating members, the Girl's Booster Club overflowed with energy to back Speedway athletes during the basketball season.

Sponsored by the GAA, the girls' class tourney resulted in the entanglement of several junior and senior girls.

After a volleyball game with Plainfield at a GAA playday, a coke provided all with a chance to become acquainted.

Competitive Recreation

"Serious" basketball games are played every Tuesday night from 6-8 p.m. in the Speedway High School gym. Intramural sports give boys, who are not participating in winter sports, an opportunity to enjoy the thrilling basketball games and tourneys. This year Price's team came out ahead of the other five teams. Intramural sponsors, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Barkhaus, try to maintain order as the boys act as their own referees and officials.

Who says athletics are only for boys? Energetic Speedway girls disprove this theory. Wintery Saturday mornings find GAA girls competing against neighboring schools in basketball and volleyball. Thursday evenings at 6:30, members of the Girls' Athletic Association, under the direction of Mrs. Rudicel, practice softball, touch football, volleyball, and basketball. Besides swimming, this year girls as well as women faculty members received instructions in judo from Speedway graduates Judy Kendall and Roberta Yoho. GAA also sponsored a volleyball tournament between the faculty women and the GAA members. The teachers won in an extra overtime and with a little help from the scorers' bench. In an effort to boost their treasury and fill up Speedway students, GAA sponsored several after-school cookie sales.

Speedway welcomed a new activity instituted this year—the Art Club. The first major project of the year was to gather and sketch designs for a school crest. These designs were then turned over to Student Council for approval. Later in the year the club planned a field trip to Oldfield's Estate. Organizing an entirely new club is not an easy venture, but the Art Club members have made a fine start.

Feeling the spirit of Homecoming, Spanish Club members sponsored and built a float for the Homecoming parade. Just before Christmas, Spanish Club sponsored their annual Christmas "fiesta"; during the spring, members decided to make awards on Honor Day to students maintaining an all A semester average in at least four years of Spanish.

German Club rounds out the language department extra-curricular activities. Viewing slides from pupils participating in the IU Honors Program, seeing German movies at Garfield Theatre, and hearing a girl from Germany speak absorbed club meetings. German Club also sponsored a medal for the highest scholastic achievement in the department and an after-game dance in February. Spanish and German Clubs joined forces to go on a picnic to Brown Country at the end of the year.

Sponsored by the German Club, this after-game dance drew a large crowd of Speedway students.

Students Profit from Preparation

"Don't like school? Change it! Join FTA now." This plea appeared on a poster in Study Hall 116 throughout the year to promote membership in one of Speedway's many clubs, Future Teachers of America. Students interested in getting a background in the teaching profession and acquiring general information about various colleges joined FTA. Arranging lectures and viewing films were among the varied activities planned by this club, sponsored by Mrs. Bradley.

Meeting twice a month, Future Homemakers of America joined together to gain knowledge of homemaking skills as well as personality pointers. Club sponsor, Mrs. Ries, assisted FHA president, Rae Julian, with club activities.

Candidates for Speedway Homecoming Queen, Coni Hendrickson, Tammy Griffith, and Pam Miller, wave to the crowd and wait anxiously for the big announcement.

Sophomore entry into the homecoming float contest proved to be quite bewitching.

Recipient of the Student Council float award, the senior float provided the Sparkplugs with the means to shoot down the Beech Grove Hornets 32 to 0.

Junior attendant Kathie Murphy is escorted under the flower arches by Don Muir as she is introduced to the homecoming crowd.

Dances Complement Extracurricular Activities

Many couples seem to temporarily forget they are attending a dance and turn it into a gab session.

No matter which dance it is, punch and cookies always provide a relaxing refreshment from the rigors of dancing.

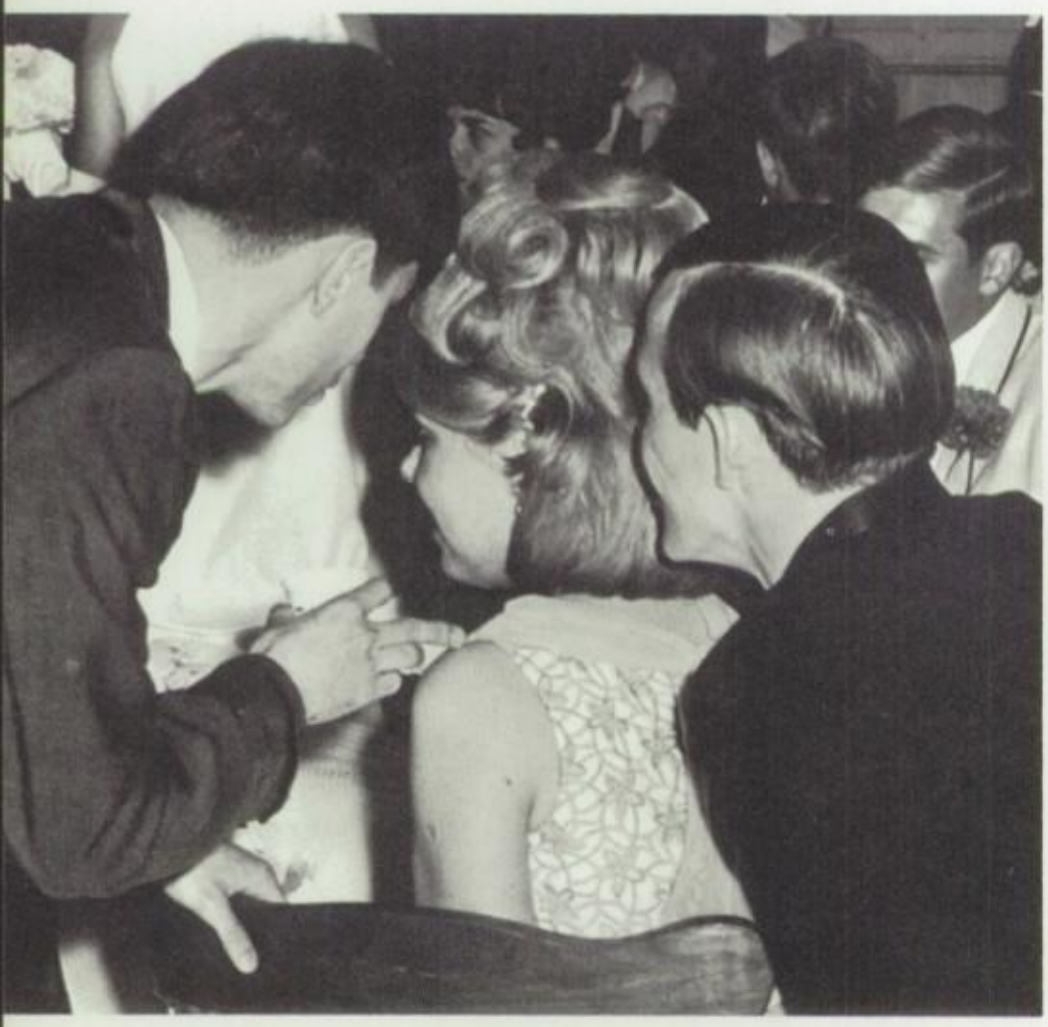
From Indiana University, the P.B.R. provide the groovy music for the sophomores' Christmas dance.

"Well, howdy, Mr. Downey," calls Garry Davis as he and his date enjoy the Christmas dance sponsored by the sophomores.

Sherwood Country Club

The crowning event of the Junior-Senior Prom was the selection of Pam Miller and Steve Allen as Queen and King.

Sherwood Country Club provides the beautiful background for a very successful prom with the atmosphere of a "Paradise Isle."



Birds of paradise and lush green tropical flowers adorned the Sherwood Country Club on April 29, the night of the Junior-Senior Prom. Juniors saw many hours of hard work transformed into a beautiful scene for prom-goers. The theme, "Paradise Isle," was accentuated by a sparkling fountain and shimmering goldfish. The tropical mood was set to music by The Highliters. Hungry dancers were not forgotten as junior girls took turns serving nuts, candy, cookies, and blue punch. The crowning of Prom King Steve Allen and Prom Queen Pam Miller ended the suspense for the ten hopeful candidates and started the royal dance.

Many students stopped at the Speedway Christian Church for breakfast before returning home for a few hours of well-deserved sleep. The next morning, weary travellers left early for the traditional prom picnic at one of the state parks. Sunday dusk brought SHS students home to the reality of homework and a long week of school ahead.

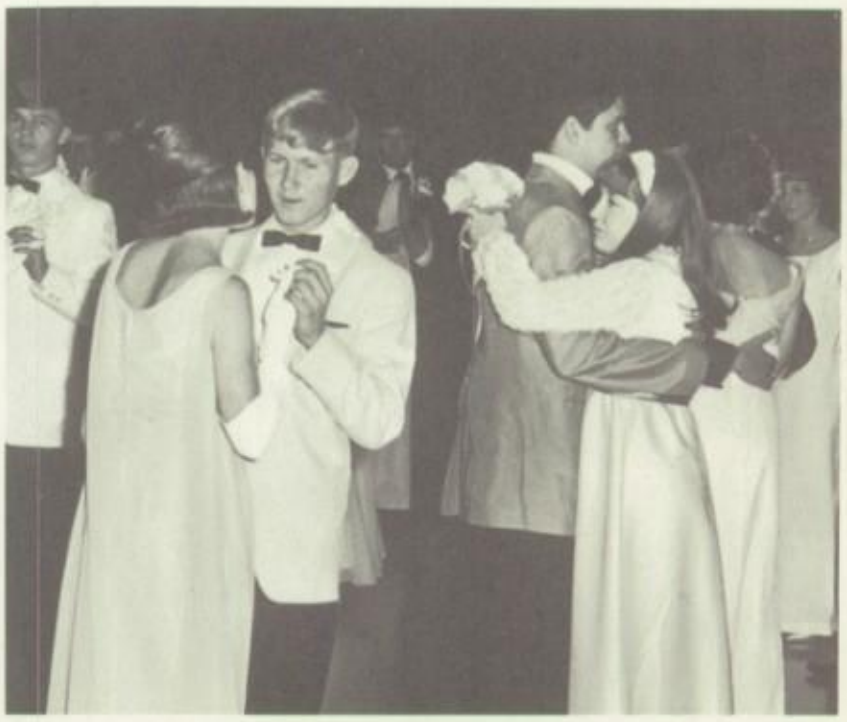
Transformed into Paradise Isle

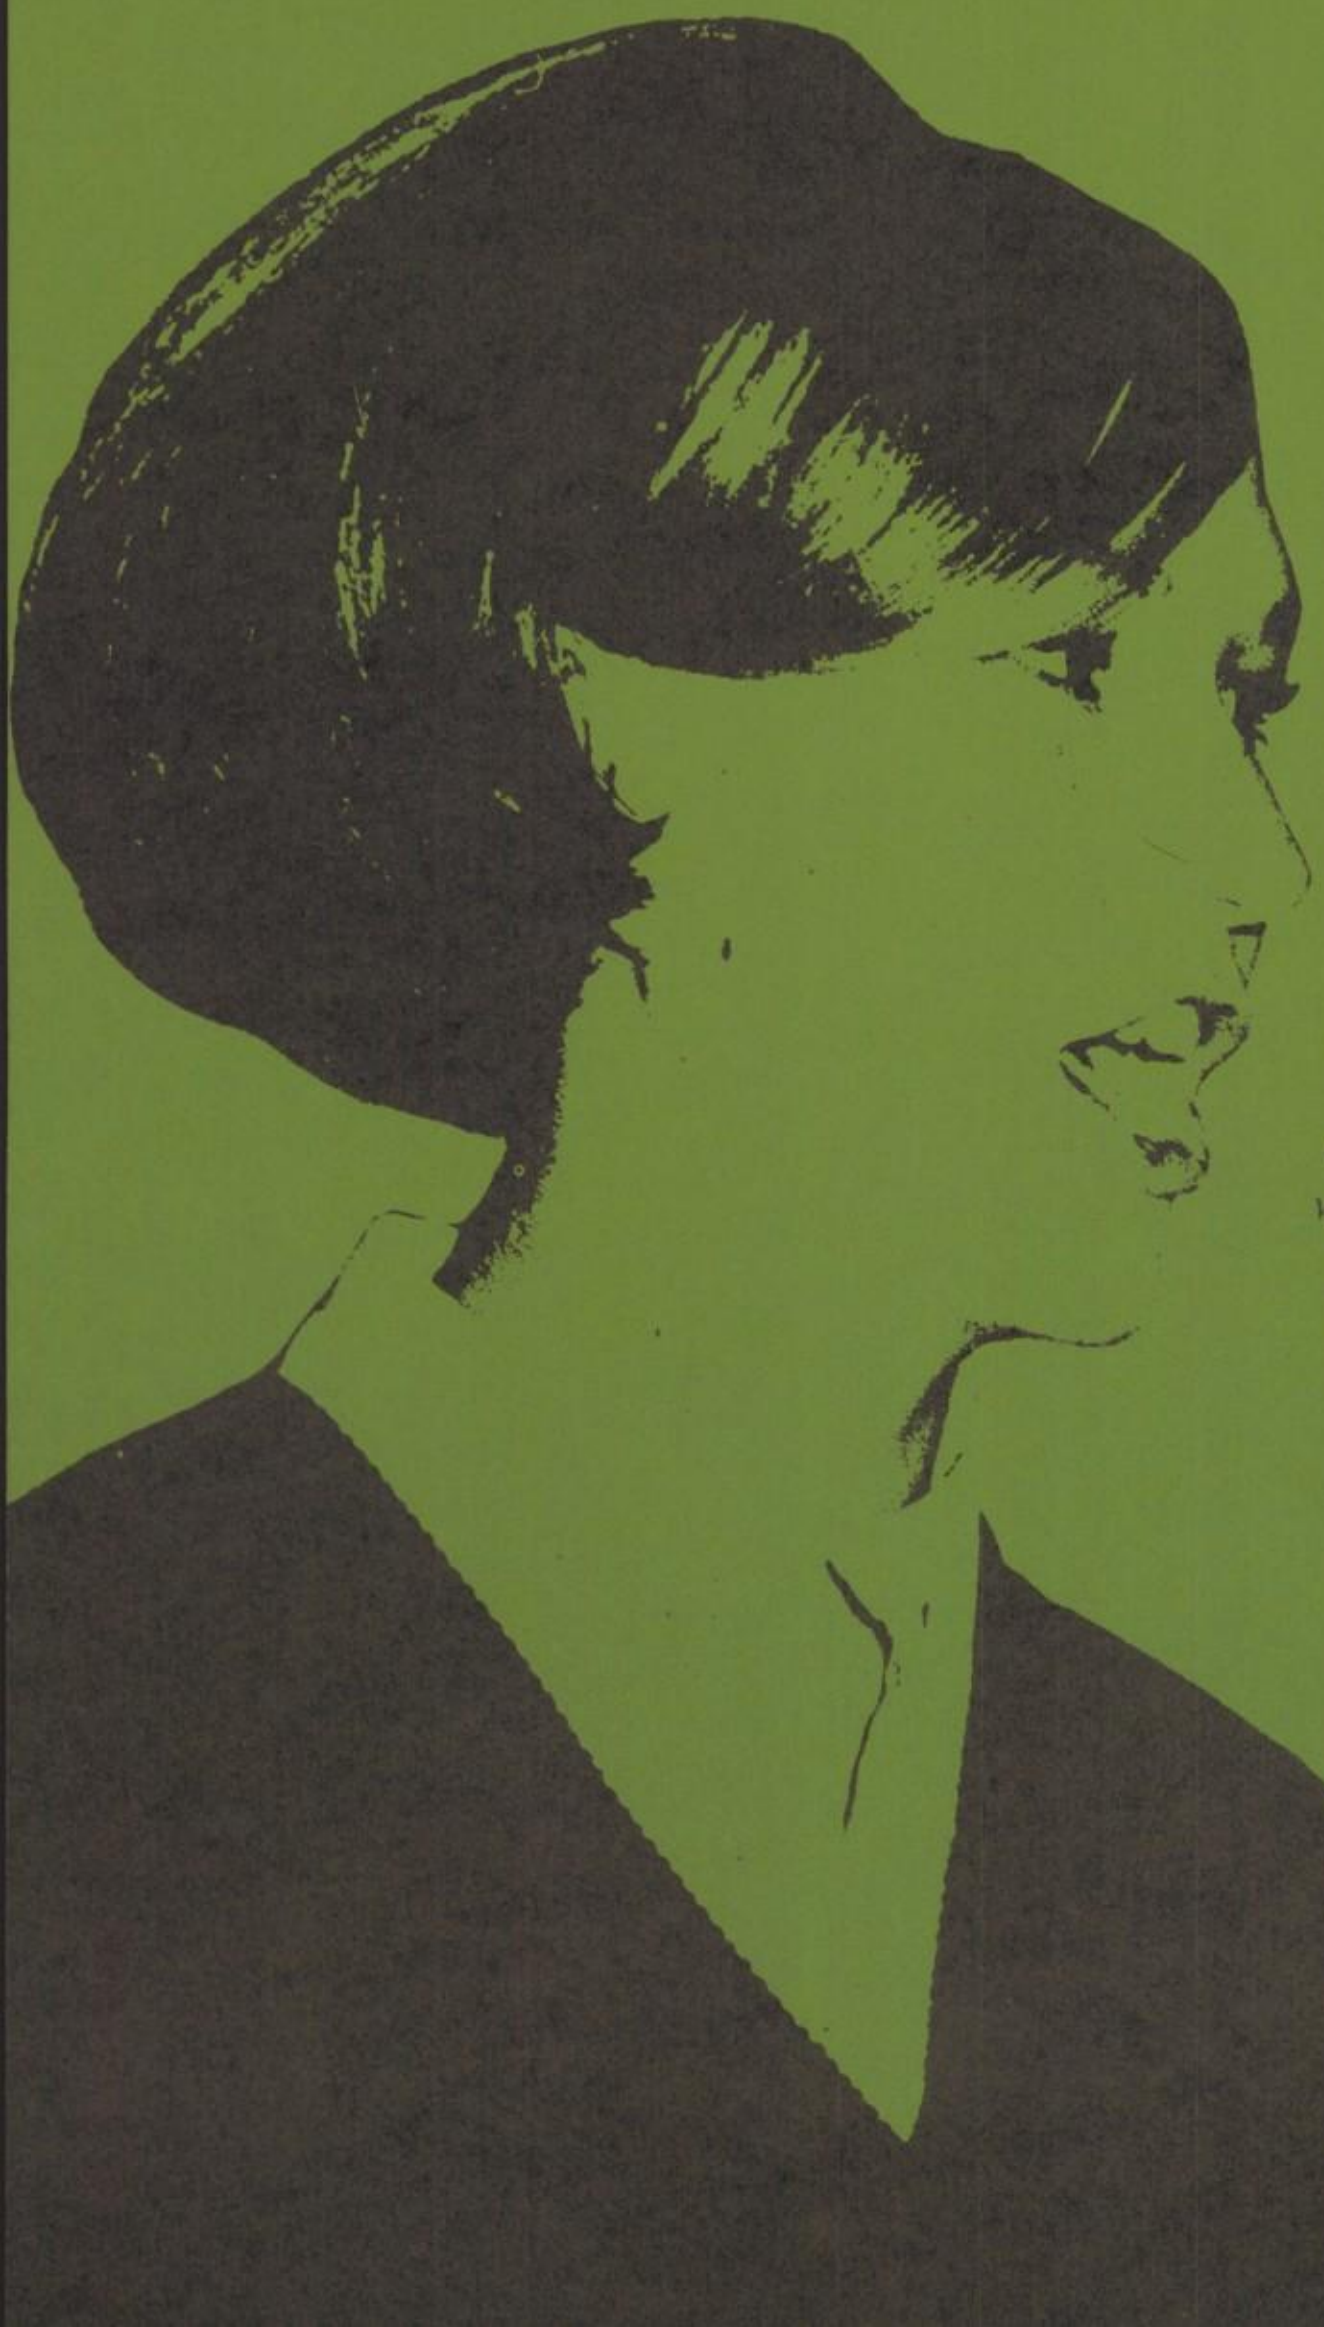
Refreshments served by Kathy Weatherford seem to be rather pleasing to Carolyn Green and her escort.

Mrs. Guernsey and Mr. Thompson enjoy the job of chaperoning while they reflect on how things change over the years.



Dancing to the music of the Highliters made the evening pass quickly while filling it with innumerable memories.

Junior Patty Leonard and sophomore Ron Hall join hands as they take a break from dancing and head for refreshments.



Students

A school without students is only an empty building. Just as people make a nation, students make Speedway. Individuals, homerooms, and classes fit together into a well-run educational system. Laughter, tears, and frowns appear on the faces of students as grades are made, awards are won, and hearts are broken. Students are the core of Speedway.

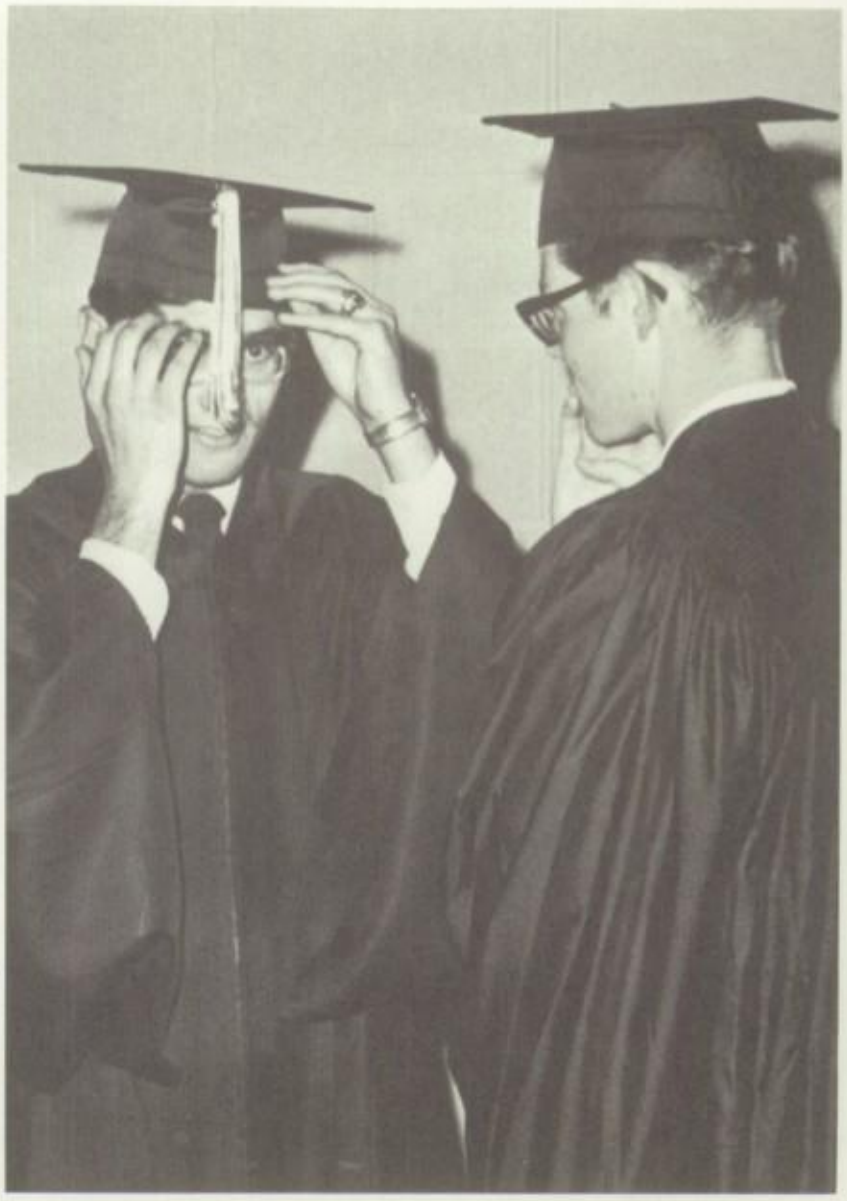
Graduation Brings 1968 to a

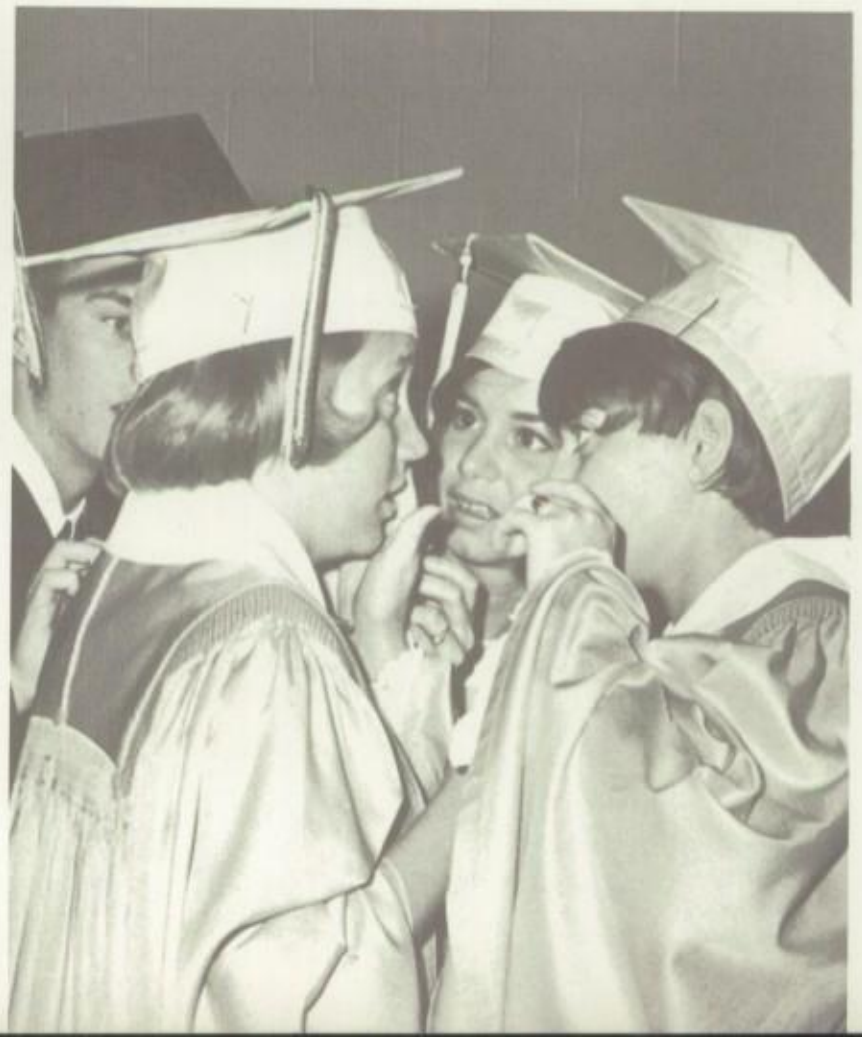
Seniors wait impatiently for the commencement speakers to take their places and start the program.

Mr. Thompson, retiring principal, presents his last class, the Class of 1968, and certifies that the 187 seniors have met all the requirements for graduation.

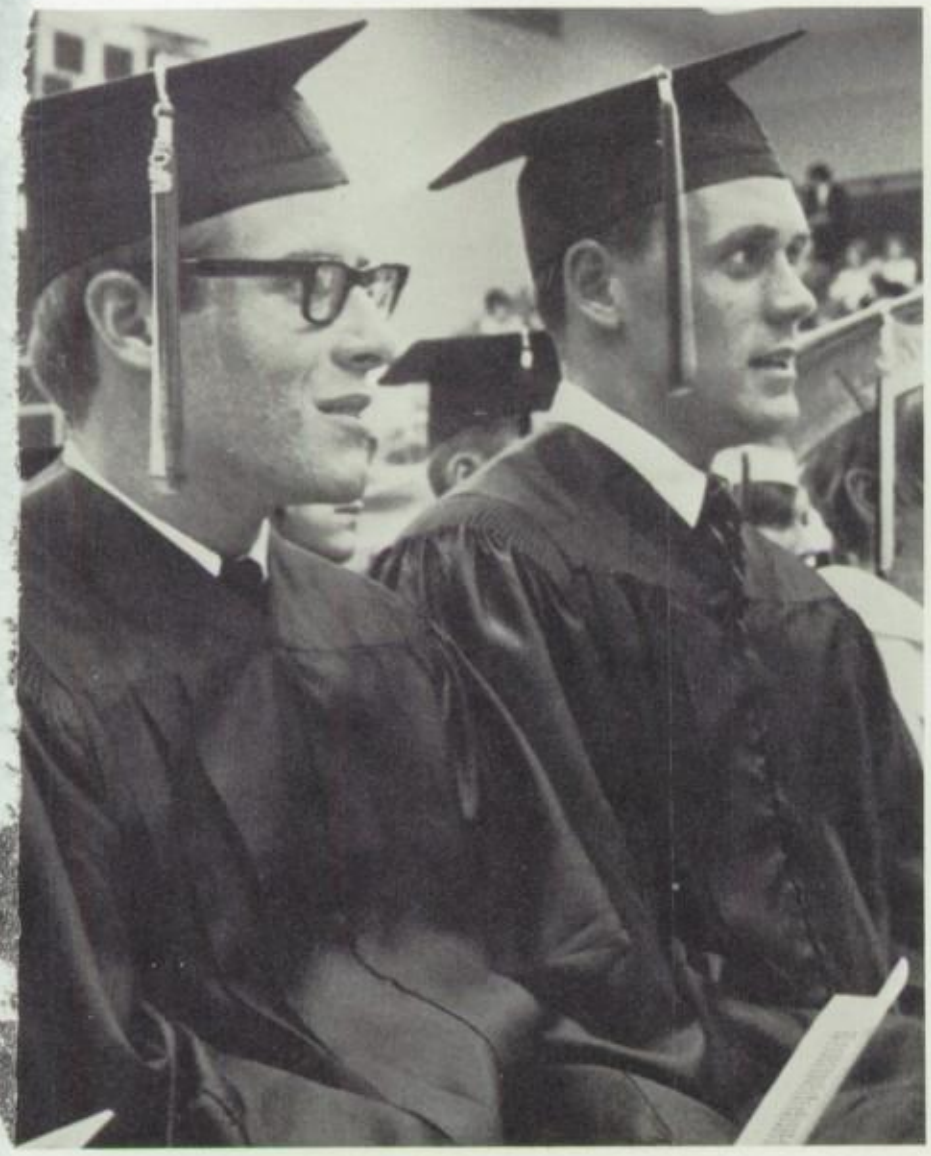
Jack Rustamier, Janet Parks, and Sharon Smith help Gwynda Corson recenter her contact lens.



Debating to the end, Dudley Burdge advises Guy Roush on just how he should wear his cap.



Dramatic End



Listening intently to commencement speaker, Dr. Wesley N. Haines, president of Franklin College, Randy Martin and Mike Masariu learn the four keys for a successful life.

Donna Blessing receives her diploma and a congratulatory handshake from Mr. Rosebrock, president of the Speedway School Board.

Awareness of the reality of graduation became apparent as seniors picked up caps and gowns and practiced third period for the ceremony in the gymnasium. More than one graduating senior found that caps don't always fit and that bobbie pins have a way of disappearing. Tassels have a way of flipping into eyes at the most serious moments. Even the long gowns proved provoking with sleeves trailing cumbersomely near one's knees.

Final adjustments were made and for the last time the Senior Class of Speedway High School filed into the gymnasium before an expectant crowd. Listening to commencement speaker, Dr. Wesley N. Haines, preceded the handing out of diplomas by School Board President, Ted Rosebrock. Soon each senior had a look at his diploma and saw with pride his name printed inside. As each graduate filed out of the gym, his eyes were filled with dreams of the world ahead.

Entering school for the last time as seniors, Chris Barnes, Jo Black, and Francie Tomlinson carry caps and gowns to prepare for the commencement program.

Caps, gowns, and roses—these shining accolades spurred 196 seniors through their final year at Speedway. Led by President Bill Williams, the Class of '68 selected brown and gold graduation robes. When windy November brought the chilling fear of college boards, seniors really began to feel the pressure. As deadlines approached, the counselors were beseiged with recommendation blanks and scholarship applications.

After many hours of labor on the homecoming float, seniors were awarded first place by Student Council during halftime. Throughout the year, senior spirit was reflected by the battle with the sophomores for the coveted Spirit Jug.

Dances, Honor Day, Scholarship Day, and Senior Day sped seniors toward graduation. On June 3, the senior class was no more.

Summer's lazy days contained exciting hours for those juniors participating in Driver's Education. For the first time, the members of the Class of 1969 entered Speedway High School under their own power. With driver's licenses proudly in hand, juniors began a year of study and fun. Immediately, the 191 juniors started focusing their sights on the Junior-Senior Prom. In an effort to raise money, juniors worked at concession stands during home basketball games and collected soaring class dues.

Conquering the required U.S. History course, juniors later attacked College Board examinations and National Merit Scholarship tests. As upperclassmen, juniors were inducted into the selective National Honor Society. Three successful years completed, juniors were eager and willing to undertake the responsibilities of their senior year.

Winning the coveted award, the sophomores defeated the seniors in the battle for the spirit jug during the last pep session of the year. The 204 sophomores lacked no enthusiasm in supporting the only sophomore player on the varsity basketball team, Tom Gilbert. On homecoming night, the sophomores helped "Brew Up a Victory" over Beech Grove with their float for the Sparkplugs.

Scholastically-minded sophomores struggled through a grueling day and a half of SRA tests in October. Only a few lucky tenth graders were able to participate in the sought-after driver's training program. All sophomores, however, were required to pass the tedious health and safety and developmental reading classes.

As the end of the year approached, the arrival of class jewelry perked up the Class of 1970. These fortunate sophomores are the first to receive the coveted emblems before their junior year. Looking ahead to their junior year, sophomores anticipated the status and the responsibility that go along with being upperclassmen.

Fledgling Freshmen Find that They Face

On the morning of September 5, 1967, the Freshman Class entered the halls of Speedway High School. After mastering the mechanics of their lockers, the Class of 1971 roamed through the maze of corridors looking for their first-period classes.

It didn't take long for these freshmen to get "in the groove." Early in the year, these students became accustomed to patterns of SHS life—Mr. Thompson's morning announcements each day and homeroom every Tuesday before second period.

Class spirit was exemplified by the support given to the freshmen cheerleaders and by the creation of their homecoming float by willing hands. By observing the large number of names on the A and B Honor Rolls, freshmen have proven that they are concerned with getting a strong academic background.

In the process of planning high school careers, freshmen were confronted with the problem of choosing majors and minors. Solving this and other problems, the Class of '71 moved forward to face another year.

A year at SHS is easily likened to a silhouette. Although 1967-1968 is now past, the shadow of treasured memories lingers on and on. From those memories we may remove those not so pleasant and toss them out much as we do an unwanted piece of paper; but still another year, rich in hopes, ambitions, and dreams passes by leaving a wiser, more intelligent individual. For this year we owe our thanks to many: our parents, our teachers, our classmates, our friends . . .
it's been an unforgettable year!
